Senate vote expected on federal nomination

BY DENA BISNETTE

The U.S. Senate is expected to vote before the end of February on the presidential recommendation of Bay St. Louis attorney Walter Gex III for a federal judge's post.

A Senate Judiciary Committee hearing for Gex was completed Wednesday afternoon, his secretary Kathy Ladner said.

Ladner said Gex had telephoned her from Washington, D.C., after the hearing and had said the full Senate is expected to consider the recommendation either the week of Feb. 17 or the week of Feb. 24.

She said he had told her that the hearing lasted about one hour and "had gone very well."

Gex, a Diamondhead resident and a member of the Bay St. Louis law firm Gex, Gex and Phillips, was recommended by President Ronald Reagan in December.

He had been nominated by Senator Thad Cochran in April for appointment to one of two recently added judgeships for Mississippi's Southern District, but Ladner said Gex had also had backing from Senator John Stennis.

If the Senate votes to confirm the appointment, Gex will be based at the Federal Courthouse in Biloxi. He will also be the second sitting U.S. District Judge from Hancock County. The other is Bay St. Louis resident Dan Russell.

School board reverses selection of architect

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Recinding a decision earlier this week to hire Jackson architects to design kindergarten classrooms, the Bay Municipal School District Tuesday selected a local firm for the job.

The board had voted unanimously Monday to hire Eaton and Associates for the architectural work.

Board Member D. L. Carter told other members after studying six proposals Monday he felt Eaton would be the best choice because the company's design and construction capabilities had allowed presentation of specific figures and dates to the board.

"The basis for my motion naming Eaton as architect is because he will give us the best product and lock in the prices," Carter said.

It will be to the school board's benefit to have locked in prices in the event of a building boom and increase in prices, he said.

However, Carter added he had reservations since the board had not received confirmation from its attorney on legality of authorizing the same firm to bid as general contractor on a project they had designed.

Following an unrelated discussion of school bus funding, and immediately prior to adjournment of the Monday meeting, Board President Walter Turcotte suggested the architect selection be contingent on the board attorney's opinion.

Although the vote was unanimous in Eaton's favor the board agreed that Architect Jules Legarde, a Bay St. Louis resident, and the Hopkins Company of New Orleans, La. with which he is associated, would be the second choice for the job.

At Tuesday's meeting Attorney Lucien Gex told the board "that it was not illegal for Eaton to design and construct the classrooms but that since public funds were involved a conflict could arise."

Gex added that there was also the possibility of a conflict of interest depending on who was chosen for the inspection.

Following Gex's comments Superintendent J. D. McCulloch read the original motion accepting Eaton's proposal.

The motion included the stipulation "in the event they (Eaton) can not participate in both architectural and bid process, then we (the board) go to the next architect in line, Jules Legarde and The Hopkins Company."

The board next approved a motion to recind Monday's decision.

Then Carter made another motion to allow Eaton to do the architectural work. The motion died for the lack of a second.

Board Member Cyril Glover made a motion for Legarde to be the architect which was approved by the board with Carter voting nay.

Other firms which presented proposals last week to build the classrooms include Fountain, Lamas and Fields of Gulfport; Fred Wagner of Bay St. Louis; John Mykolyk and Associates of Pass Christian; and Michael Reeves of Bay St. Louis.

Petition indicates teacher support for Magee

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A petition purporting to indicate Bay School District teachers' choice for superintendent was presented to the school board Tuesday night.

Bay High School teacher Jon Blanchette gave board members a copy of the petition which included the signatures of some 150 teachers and employees of the district requesting that Assistant Superintendent Robert Magee be included among the top candidates being considered for the superintendent's position.

"We work here and believe we should have equal opportunity to submit the name of the person we believe most qualified for the job," he said.

Blanchette said in a telephone interview Wednesday that he wanted to emphasize that the petition was originated by a group of teachers at the high school.

"The administration had nothing to do with the petition, we felt we needed to say something," Blanchette added.

Following the presentation of the petition to the board, Peggy Dutton, a junior high school teacher, said she believed several signers of the petition had added their support because they were afraid the petition could be used against them if they did not sign.

"I believe this should render that petition invalid," she said.

Dutton stated Wednesday that she also feels the petition was circulated in the schools in violation of school policy prohibiting campaigning.

According to the school's Personal Policy and Procedures Handbook, "no campaigning or solicitation is allowed during school hours, no professional employee shall use his or her position for political influence or in any way exploit the classroom by imposing personal political views on pupils or colleagues."

"In my view this policy should cover internal as well as external campaigning," she added.

Superintendent J. D. McCulloch said he did not believe the petition to be against the school's policy but would seek the opinion of the board's attorney to present to the school board.

Bay High Assistant Principal Billy Rhodes stated Wednesday that while the petition did originate at the high school, it was authored and circulated entirely by faculty without any administrative influence.

The petition also was circulated at the other three schools in the district.

Bay Junior High Principal W. J. Cameron said before granting permission for the petition to be circulated he emphasized that there was to be no harassment or coercion to get signatures.

"I told them (presenters of the petition) that no one would be pressured into anything," he added.

James Baldree, Waveland Elementary principal, attached the following message to the petition before it was circulated:

"Approval is hereby granted for the attached petition to be made available to the employees of the Waveland Elementary School.

"No expectations are placed on employees concerning this matter. Each employee should determine whether or not to sign based on the dictates of his own conscience."

North Bay Elementary Principal Rogers James also said any claims of teachers being intimidated to sign the petition were "totally untrue."

Baldree, Cameron and James also said they had not received word of any kind of intimidation or had a

PTO president charged with embezzlement

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The president of the North Bay Elementary Parent-Teacher Organization has been arrested in connection with the alleged embezzlement of PTO funds.

Law enforcement officers arrested Lee W. Cline, 41, of 109 Beverly Drive Bay St. Louis, Tuesday and charged him with embezzlement and uttering forgery.

Charges stem from three checks Cline allegedly wrote to himself from the PTO account and forged the organization treasurer's name.

Two of the checks for a total of $9,276.61 were honored by the bank before the treasurer's signature was determined to be irregular.

Payment was stopped on the third check which was in the amount of $2,500.

School Board Attorney Lucien Gex said Wednesday that the PTO account was protected by bond in excess of the amount allegedly embezzled.

Cline was released from the Hancock County Jail after posting a $15,000 bond and is awaiting a preliminary hearing, said Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Officials emphasized, the accused is not to be confused with former Justice Court Judge Lee Klein of Clermont Harbor).

Waveland board questioned on sewerage expansion plans

BY DENA BISNETTE

The city of Waveland has plans to expand its sewerage system but funding must be obtained before the project can begin.

Three owners of property in presently unserved areas appeared before the board of aldermen Tuesday to discuss the problem.

According to one, Robert Kane, development of large commercial centers like shopping centers is not possible without sewerage.

Kane said he owns property along the north side of US-90, which has no sewerage at this time.

However, the city presently has sewer construction, a line crossing the highway at the site of the new Waveland Police Station near Water Street.

Charles Johnson said the city has plans to build a sewer line in the unserved areas on US-90.

east Waveland have been backing up into ditches.

He said installation of sewerage would not only eliminate the problems with sewage in ditches but would help to encourage further development.

In addition, the board was addressed by Luke Caruso, who asked about the possibility of installation of sewerage in a wedge-shaped section of property between Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center and Longfellow Drive.

Mayor John Longo said the line crossing US-90 is the first step in providing sewerage service to the entire city.

The city has had plans drawn up for the project but postponed it last year after failing to obtain a Community Development Block Grant to provide funding.

Longo said a second attempt to obtain a grant is being made this year. The grants are usually awarded during October.

He added that he is optimistic about obtaining a grant this year, but said the city plans to use Farmers Home Administration financing if grant funds can not be obtained.

He said the areas Kane and Johnson specified would be included in the project, but commented that the property to which Caruso referred may be outside the city limits.

He said he expects the project to be started within a year to 18 months after funding is obtained.

Also addressing the board at Tuesday's meeting was Eve McDonald, director of the Hancock County Office on Aging.

McDonald said recent funding cuts to South Mississippi Planning and Development District, the administrative agency for her office, may not have been the last cut to trickle down from federal and state levels to the Hancock County level.

McDonald asked if the city could help cover some of the expenses.

The city contributed $5,000 per year to the program but discontinued the funding last year.

Instead, the city has been paying the salaries of four part-time senior aides at the Waveland Hospitality Center of US-90.

That contribution totals about $12,000 per year, Longo said.

"I don't think we have ever said no to any program but we've got one more shot. I feel at federal money and that's it. We will have to come up with local funds," Longo said.

He said the board would consider the possibility of additional funding for the senior citizens program when the board is worked out for the 1986-87 fiscal year.

In other business, the board authorized City Supervisor Herman V. Johnson to prepare specifications for development of a new shopping center on the city's north side.

The board also approved a plan to build a new shopping center on the city's north side.

The board also approved a plan to build a new shopping center on the city's north side.

PEARLINGTON ACCIDENT—Mississippi State Trooper Houston Door, left, and Hancock Deputy Sheriff Leo Ladner view pickup truck involved in a one-vehicle accident on Tuesday on Highway 604, Pearlington. Door said the vehicle, driven by James Melvin McGrew of Pearlington, Door said McGrew was charged with reckless driving, improper tag and speeding for road conditions. Door stated, adding the accident is still being investigated, and there is a possibility of other charges. McGrew was taken by Mobile Medie to Hancock General Hospital and treated for facial lacerations and released, according to Mary Perkins, hospital spokesman. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Senior job registry available in Hancock

By EDGAR H. PEREZ

The Seniors Job Registry in Hancock County provides free employment agency services to both employers and employees.

The registry is maintained in the Russell Youth Court Building, 126 Court St., Bay St. Louis and is administered by Jim Widmark of Bay St. Louis.

The service is provided by the National Council of Senior Citizens Senior Aides Program and funded by the U.S. Department of Labor through South Mississippi Planning and Development District.

"If you are 55-years-old or older and are interested in part-time or full-time employment, visit our office and fill out an application," Widmark urges.

"On the other hand, if you have a vacancy in your organization or a repair or paint job at home you may register with us to get your job done—we can find a suitable person to fill your need," he added.

"Senior citizens have a vast amount of knowledge and years of experience to offer," Widmark stated.

"They need to work to supplement their low fixed incomes and will accept positions by the hour, day, week or month working with maximum efficiency and minimum

Harris to run for school board

CLARENCE HARRIS

Clarence Harris, 37, of 528 Amar Street, Waveland, MS, will run in March 1 election for Bay St. Louis School Board.

He is married to Debra Harris and is the father of four children, all of whom attend school in the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District.

They include Roderick Harris, 15, Bay High; Kimberly Harris, 14, Bay Junior High; Querita Harris, 11, Bay Junior High and John Harris, 11, Bay Junior High.

Harris is a member of Macedonia Baptist Church and is employed by Williams Wrecking Company at NSTL. A 1967 graduate of Valena C. Jones School in Bay St. Louis, Harris studied drafting at Rock Island Technical School in Illinois and received basic training in electricity at Pearl River Junior College Vocational-Technical Center in Hancock County.

Harris is a past president and presently serving as treasurer for the Hancock County Chapter of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People. He is a member of the screening committee for Bay school superintendent and directs the Waveland Youth Development Program. He is also a member of the Advisory Committee to the County Department of Public Welfare and the County Democratic Executive Committee.

"If elected, I will work toward making our school system the best school system on the coast. We have the resources and the ability to have the best if the school board, parents, administrators, staff, students, businesses and the community work as one common force to provide the best education for all students that one can expect," Harris said.

"Mind is a terrible thing to waste, so let's put our priorities in the right place."

Local students participate in science, math tournament

Top high school science and mathematics students from throughout the state will converge on Mississippi College Thursday and Friday, Feb. 6 and 7, as the College hosts its 12th annual Mississippi Science and Mathematics Tournament. Students from Stone County High School include: Joe Grantham, Sam McCreedy, Debbie Mellinger, Tom Cain, Michael Creel, Greg White, Stephen Hardy, Pam Loper, and Lois Gill.

The tournament, sponsored by the Mississippi College Departments of Science and Mathematics, recognizes students and their high schools for outstanding academic achievement in the two fields of study. This year's competition will include over 1,550 students representing 180 different high schools in two days of intense competition.

Featuring both team and individual competition, the tournament offers approximately $75,000 in academic scholarships to Mississippi College. Individual competition includes one-hour written exams in math, biology, chemistry and physics with each student allowed to compete in two of the four areas. First place winners receive $1,000 scholarships, second place winners receive a $500 scholarship, while third place winners receive a $300 scholarship. These scholarships are renewable providing the students maintains a high academic average. Recognition certificates and $100 scholarships are given the top ten percent in each division.

Team competition is divided into two divisions depending on the science and math curriculum offered by the individual schools. The four-member teams compete in a quiz type format where questions are flashed on the screen and quick calculations and responses are required. All calculations are done with pencil and paper.

Dr. Craig Whitlock, Head of the Department of Physics and professor of physics at Mississippi College, is the tournament director.

JOHN D. RUTHERFORD JR.

the entire Gulf Coast.

He was selected "King Triton VII" in 1981. Triton is a male carnival association in Hancock County and is comprised of business and civic leaders in Hancock County and the surrounding areas.

Rutherford is presently serving as circuit clerk for Hancock County.

He is married to the former Rosemary Walle and they have five children and seven grandchildren.

Rutherford named parade grand marshal

John D. Rutherford, Jr., a native and a resident of Bay St. Louis, will be grand marshal for the Krewe of Diamondhead parade on Saturday.

Rutherford is an active member of the American Legion, having received the American Legion Distinguished Service Award in 1975.

He helped organize the blood bank in Bay St. Louis in 1951 and has served as president of the blood bank for 30 years.

Rutherford, known as "Big John", has participated in the scouting program for 38 years and received scouting's highest award, the Silver Beaver, in 1975.

He was a member of the State Athletic Commission and chairman of the March of Dimes and is a 32nd Degree Mason and a Shriner in Joppa Temple in Gulfport. He is a member and past president of the Bay St. Louis Booster Club; a 35 year member of the St. Stanislaus Sideline Club; and is active in the St. Joseph Carnival Association.

Rutherford is also chef for many fund raising dinners. He was Hancock County Chancery Clerk from 1972-1979. He was selected in 1980 by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for a special award as Hancock County's Outstanding Citizen of the Year.

Rutherford was selected "King Neptune" of the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo in 1980, an honor awarded to an outstanding citizen of

SCORE elects Diamondhead pair

J. Lucian Gilbert of Ocean Springs, former trade development director for Jackson County Port Authority, is new chairman of Gulf Coast Chapter, Service Corps of Retired Executives.

SCORE is interested in recruiting business executives who volunteer counseling services to small businesses.

Gilbert predicted population growth and economic improvement in 1986 in his address to the chapter at its annual awards banquet.

"With the development of new businesses and the expansion of existing businesses, there will be an increased need for counseling during the upcoming year," he told chapter members.

"Today's entrepreneur is better educated and more knowledgeable than those of yesterday."

He said most new businesses are in the service area rather than retail and most are operated by women.

Sid Wogan of Ocean Springs received a certificate of appreciation for his work in coordinating and presenting workshops to persons in small business.

Other officers of the chapter are Walter "Dick" Cosby of Diamondhead, vice chairman; Mildred Buerkle, also of Diamondhead, recording secretary; and Wogan, treasurer.

SCORE is interested in recruiting retired business people and other professionals who will volunteer their services in counseling small businesses.

Interested persons are asked to contact SCORE through the Small Business Association office in Gulfport at 863-4449.

Executives who still are active in business and who are interested in helping the small business community are urged to join the ACE (Active Corps of Executives) section of SCORE.

Take stock in America.

Quotables by Cuevas

A problem over the years is now becoming very serious in Hancock County.

The removal of stop signs and street signs is on a tremendous increase, according to Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, especially in Pearlington and Shoreline Park areas.

The removal of a stop sign can cause someone not familiar with an area to be involved in a serious accident, and may cause loss of life.

Street signs are also used by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service in making emergency calls, and the ambulance could be delayed and possibly cause someone to lose their life because of delays.

The sheriff said parents should urge their children not to remove signs to place in their bedrooms, as this is the reason for the removal of some. Others are removed as mischief.

Recently a large number of street and stop signs were found in the woods by sheriff's deputies during the investigation of another incident.

Stop and street signs are very expensive, and it costs you and me every time one has to be replaced.

Our county and city governments are all in a financial squeeze and are all trying to find ways to decrease not increase spending.

I hope the persons responsible for the removal of the street and stop signs will realize the importance signs play in our lives, and let them be.

Saturday is Mardi Gras time for Diamondhead Community.

The Land and Sea parades begin at noon and are scheduled to meet at 2:30 p.m. at the Yacht Club.

It seems that every year the number of participants increases in the Diamondhead parades, as well as the number of spectators.

The land parade begins at Diamondhead's Country Club and the sea parade at the mouth of the Jordan River.

Also on Saturday, the annual Krewe of Kids parade sponsored by the Junior Auxiliary is scheduled for 2 p.m.

The Cedar Point area parade forms and ends at North Bay Elementary School. It is a parade designed especially for youngsters.

On Sunday the annual Pass Christian Parade is set for 1 p.m.

It is one of the largest Mardi Gras parades in the area, and is also a popular outing.

Mardi Gras Day has two parades set in Hancock County.

The Krewe of Real People is scheduled for 11:30 p.m. in Bay St. Louis on Tuesday.

The last parade of the season will be at 2 p.m. on Tuesday when the Krewe of Triton rambles down US-90 from Our Shopping Center, Waveland, to Ulman Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

We hope to see you at the parades and hope everyone will have a good time.

The month of February has been designated as National History Month by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland have also proclaimed February as National History Month.

The history of our nation is very interesting, and more people should recognize its importance.

Health Hotline

Question: I think my doctor must own stock in a drug company. When I took my little girl in to see him, he said she had a strep throat and gave her a prescription for a huge bottle of penicillin liquid. The label said "take one teaspoon four times daily for ten days" but the child got well in only two days.

Now, I'm stuck with a big bottle of penicillin and a child who doesn't need it. How long will penicillin stay good in the refrigerator? Should I give it to her when she gets a cold?

Answer: Yours was one of a number of letters about various aspects of strep throat we have recently received. This is most definitely strep season and we've seen high numbers of cases. When your doctor prescribed the large bottle of penicillin he wanted you to follow the directions exactly; giving the medicine for ten full days to eliminate any chance of rheumatic fever, a serious illness which sometimes follows strep infections.

Luckily, your child didn't get it but you took a chance by not following directions. I wouldn't count on the penicillin remaining good for more than a few weeks so at this point you might as well throw it away. In answer to your question about using penicillin for a cold; please don't do it.

Colds are caused by viruses which have no respect at all for antibiotics. All you would accomplish would be to insure that, if a bacterial infection did occur, it would be resistant to penicillin.

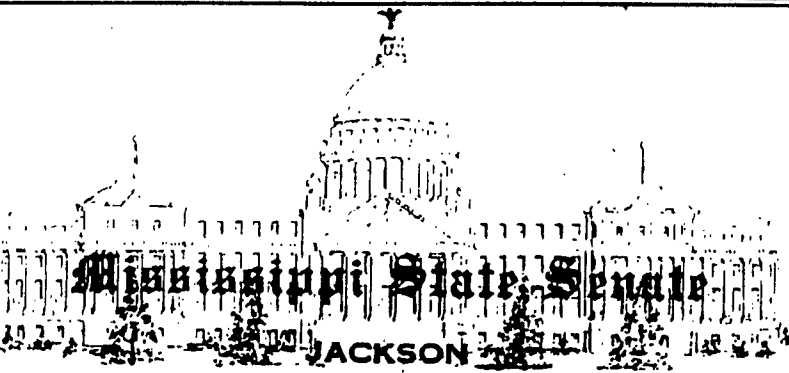

Question: I've noticed that some nurses give good shots and others give bad shots. Can you explain what makes a painless shot?

Answer: Actually, the technique has very little to do with it. The real deciding factors are in the substance being injected, the size of the needle and whether or not there happens to be a nerve ending at the exact spot where the needle enters.

I always ask my nurses to use the smallest needle possible and insert the needle quickly but we've never been able to tell exactly where those little nerve endings are located. That part is up to chance.

Mississippi State Senate
JACKSON

By Senator Gene Taylor

I am pleased to report that the Senate has passed a bill which I co-authored with Senators Irb Benjamin of Rienzi and Steve Hale of Moss Point to reduce the size of the Legislature.

On Wednesday, the Senate voted 43-8 to approve a bill to reduce the Senate from 52 to 42 members and to reduce the House of Representatives from 122 to 84 members.

The intent of this legislation is 1) to improve the efficiency of the Legislature and 2) to save the taxpayers of the state money and 3) to draw the lines of the new districts in a sensible, orderly fashion.

I believe that with reduced membership, the Legislature will be able to operate not only more efficiently but more effectively.

Presently, there are only 13 states which have more in their Legislature than Mississippi. All of our surrounding states have fewer.

If California with 25.6 million people can operate with 120 total in the Legislature, I believe that Mississippi with 2.5 million people can operate with 126 total.

We face the prospect of a continued decline in tax revenues, forcing our state agencies to suffer cutbacks in their revenue.

I believe that the first place we should start making cuts is with the Legislature. If the House adopts this bill as written, it will save the taxpayers more than $1 million per year in legislators' salaries and expenses alone.

Our present district lines were drawn on a piecemeal basis with no apparent rhyme or reason. My district, Senate District 46, is a perfect example. It covers almost all of Hancock County and then cuts a slice across Harrison County, finally ending up in Jackson County.

My district surrounds Districts 48, 49 and 50 which line the Gulf Coast. The intent of this bill is to carve sensible districts which will each have one Senator and two Representatives.

If this bill passes the House and is signed into law by the governor, it will go into effect with the 1995 election.

It would be impractical to try to implement it before this time and also costly.

The law mandates that new district lines be drawn following the 1990 census. We will not be able to get the data from that census to redraw lines any earlier than the 1995 election.

The bill must also be approved by the U.S. Justice Department under the provisions of the Voting Rights Act of 1965. I would like to see this go into effect earlier, but it is not practical.

The fourth week of the 1986 Legislative Session was marked with long hours of debate on issues such as Highway Department funding, reorganization of state health agencies, extensive election law reform, authorization for statewide banking, and reduction in the size of the Legislature. Hours of testimony were recorded in hearings on child protective services and university funding.

There has been a lot of talk that the Highway Department is a sacred cow whose funds cannot be cut during financial crises because they are funded from special funds—direct diversion from the sales tax on motor fuels—rather than from the general fund.

In a move to try to be fair to the other state agencies which are being cut but to not disrupt our highway maintenance and construction program, the Senate passed three bills affecting the Highway Department's administrative budget.

One bill cuts the department's administrative budget for the current year by five percent which amounts to about $571,000. A second bill allows the Fiscal Management Board to cut the department's administrative budget when revenue shortfalls mandate cuts in state agency budgets.

Let me emphasize that this does not affect maintenance or construction funds or state monies needed to obtain matching federal dollars.

The issue at hand for the Legislature to decide is whether to reorganize the services under the Welfare Department where they currently are or transfer them to the Division of Youth Services, which deals mainly with correctional matters.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Once again, the state Ethics Commission faces extinction at the hands of the Legislature. This time the threat comes just after the commission's most courageous move in its rocky, seven year history.

The Ethics Commission had the audacity to file suit in November against three legislators, along with three other elected officials, seeking to resolve the legal tangle over what constitutes conflict of interest.

Not only did the commission incur the wrath of some legislators, but it has bruised the feelings of Attorney General Ed Pittman who contended the ethics body did not have authority to file its own suit.

Last week in Hinds County Chancery Court, the commission won a major victory when Chancellor James Arden Barnett upheld the right of the commission to bring the suit, despite the Attorney General's objections.

In doing so, Judge Barnett, a former legislator himself, stunned the three legislators named in the Ethics Commission's suit. They strongly believed Barnett would dismiss them from the commission's case. Now they will have to stand the expense of attorneys to defend them.

All of this comes at a very sensitive time for the Ethics Commission in its seemingly endless struggle for survival.

Little over a year after it was created, the Ethics Commission in the 1981 legislative session came within a whisker of not being funded because the agency had begun to poke into some affairs some lawmakers thought should be left alone.

Then in 1983, when the Ethics Commission came up for renewal of its existence under a "sunset" provision put into the original law, it barely won re-enactment, and only then after the commission backed down on criminal provisions it sought to put in the ethics law.

But in giving the commission a new lease on life, the Legislature stuck in an automatic three-year repealer. This means the current session of the Legislature must re-enact the law or the commission will become extinct.

Members of the Ethics Commission felt they would have no real problems with getting renewal of the agency, and very likely removal of the repealer provision so that at least the commission would become a permanent arm of state government.

That apparently was wishful thinking. Not only did the Ethics body find it still has some of its old foes, but commission members found last week new hostility emanating from the direction of the lawmakers who had been named in the suit, Senators Perrin Purvis of Tupelo, and Doug Anderson of Jackson and Rep. James Nunnally of Ripley.

The Ethics Commission seemed to be in particular trouble on the Senate side, where Purvis, the senior member of the upper chamber, has a sympathetic following. Purvis denies that he is leading any effort to sabotage the agency, however.

What forced the commission to institute litigation was the dichotomy that exists between Section 109 of the constitution, which prohibits any legislator or member of any other public body from having an interest in a contract authorized by the body to which he belongs, and a 1983 legislative act that sought to provide six exemptions from conflict of interest.

A constitutional amendment submitted to the people in 1984 which sought to validate the exceptions in the 1983 statute was rejected at the polls.

Ironically, some Senate leaders had suggested after failure of the amendment that the Ethics Commission should seek clarification of the legal issues in the courts. Now that the commission has gone to court, it finds itself on the horns of another dilemma.

One other nagging problem that looms in the background of the Ethics Commission's existence is the way it is constituted, by appointees of the governor, the lieutenant governor, the Speaker of the House and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

In the hearing last week before Judge Barnett, attorneys for the AG's office, as well as several representing defendants, raised the issue that the make-up of the commission violated the separation of powers doctrine established by Gov. Bill Allain's historic suit removing legislators from executive boards.

Barnett brushed past the question in this ruling, but some observers felt it would emerge at some point later on.

Meantime, a bill backed by Atty. Gen. Pittman to bar the Ethics Commission, along with several other agencies, from initiating lawsuits seemed to have very little legislative backing.

Animal control officer outlines pet owner responsibilities

Feb. 4, 1986

Letters to the Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

Dogs running the streets

Since the dawn of civilization, pets have been cherished companions of man. Certain types were of necessity, while other types were nothing more than status symbols.

Dog breeds today are categorized as working, hunting, show, etc. Man's efforts to improve breeds, and create new ones have produced every size and shape of dog.

Somewhere along the way civilized man has in most cases lost sight of the purpose of the breeds and today owns a pet simply because he likes its looks, someone gave it to him, or his children found it and brought it home.

Ownership of a pet is an inherent right of the people, until that owner demonstrates an irresponsible attitude toward controlling his pet; then the right can and should be denied that owner.

This is the purpose of the Animal Control Ordinance—to provide humane treatment of animals, and prevent annoyances by animals or danger from them.

Most people recognize the need of such controls and usually accept reasonable regulations, however, some owners will violently object to such ordinances.

The owner must meet his responsibility for properly caring for his pets and supervising them so that they do not create problems for the communities in which they live.

Animal controls were created by the City of Waveland July 10, 1886, because the public demanded it. My job as the Waveland animal control officer is to enforce the city animal control ordinances.

I find in almost all my actions I satisfy a complainant, but offend the owner.

Seldom is the owner appreciative of the fact that I have acted in the best interest of his pet, or that I retrieved his dog off busy Waveland Avenue or Beach Boulevard.

Animal problems result from the actions of irresponsible owners or uninformed owners.

I am never surprised when an owner states to me, "My dog never leaves the yard" after I have followed his dog for blocks on his way home from the beach.

I wish some of the so-called owners who let their animals run the streets would have to go out at 10 p.m. when someone's dog has been hit, and is laying almost dead on the street or on the side of the road.

That is the time that we as animal control officers hate—when we have to put someone's beautiful animal to sleep because it is in such pain.

That is the story of the irresponsible owners, whose dog "never leaves the yard."

But I am the one who has to put the animal to sleep, and sometimes listen to the too late regrets from the owners.

For the animal it is already too late, it has already done its suffering and died, because of that irresponsible owner.

Please keep your animal under control, and save at least one animal's life. Also, as a footnote: It is the law that owners will not let animals run the streets in the City of Waveland.

Thank you for your help.
Ed W. Abson
Waveland Animal Control Officer

DOWN HOME

I will be conducting a seminar on polo shirt construction and techniques of handling knitted fabrics beginning at 9:30 a.m. Friday (Feb. 7) at TG&Y's fabric department. The presentation is free and open to the public.

Note-taking during the session is recommended and questions on individual problems will be answered.

KNITTED FABRICS

Are you aware of the tremendous impact on the clothing and textiles industry by knit fabrics? Knits are being used in all weights and fibers—acetate, cotton, wool, polyester, olefin, rayon, silk, acrylics—and blends. You will find knitted fabrics now in lacy open sheers, light weight double knits, heavy weight coating knits and deep piles. You will find knits too in exciting colors suitable for all seasons and occasions. The knits are even being used for the new permanent press finish to give them greater dimensional stability.

TERMS USED

Knitting—Knitting refers to the construction of fabrics with either a single yarn or set of yarns looping together to form chains of stitches both horizontally and vertically.

Wale—Loops of knitted stitches running vertically or lengthwise of a knitted fabric are called wales.

Courses—Courses refer to the knitted loops running horizontally or across knitted fabrics.

TYPES OF KNITTED FABRICS

There are two basic classifications of knitted fabrics: welt, or filling knits, and warp knits. Double knits, widely used today, are a variation of a filling knit but are classified separately because of the manufacturing process.

Welt knits can be produced either on flat or circular machines. Those made on circular machines are in a tube and must be cut open. Welt knitting is the type of knitting produced by hand knitting. The stitches go from side to side, thus the stretch is mainly sidewise. Plain jerseys are made by this method.

Warp knitting is done on a machine that controls each yarn on a separate needle. The yarns run lengthwise and are in general less elastic and flatter than filling knits.

Double knits are produced on special machines using a two-needle construction that interlocks two single fabrics into one. Greater dimensional stability is achieved when in single knit jersey. The term "double knit" is not a standard technical term. Since this fabric is produced on special circular machines, it is cut open from its tubular shape, generally by the manufacturer. There are several types of double knits such as Double Pique and Mock Pique.

CONSTRUCTION TECHNIQUES

Pattern Selection

1. Weight and hand of knitted fabric must be considered when you select a pattern. Generally, double knits have more body than single knits and lend themselves well to more tailored styles. Single knits drape more softly and can be used where soft gathers or tucks are required.

2. Since knits tend to stretch easily on bias seams, gored and flared skirts are not recommended.

Construction Techniques

1. Fabric Preparation

• If fabric is still in a tube, cut it open following a wale. Check for twisting. If fabric is badly out of line, it may be impossible to straighten.

• Pre-shrink by a thorough wetting if garment will be laundered. Steam press to pre-shrink dry cleanable fabrics. Set iron according to fiber content of fabric.

• If the fold is difficult to press out, avoid using it or incorporate it in an inconspicuous area of the garment.

• Support entire fabric piece for cutting layout. Fabric will stretch if it hangs over the end of a table.

• Follow lengthwise ribs of fabric for lengthwise grain when laying pattern on fabric for cutting.

2. Needle and Thread Selection

• Use machine needles fine to medium (9 to 14), depending on fabric weight.

• The fiber content of the fabric determines the kind of sewing thread to use. Textured nylon sewing thread has elasticity, strength, and resilience; silk or mercerized cotton thread may also be used.

3. Seams

• For greater give in seams, use a medium to loose balanced tension and light pressure on most knits. Check tension by stitching on a scrap of fabric.

• Shorter stitches give greater elasticity. Use 12 to 18 stitches per inch on side seams, 15 to 20 stitches per inch where strain is great. Seams may be constructed with a small zigzag stitch for give. Make a few sample seams to determine the best stitch length.

• Pin basting will help to minimize stretching of fabric while stitching.

• Stay-stitch shoulders, neckline, and armholes, and reinforce shoulder and waistline seams with twill tape or seam binding to eliminate stretching of seams.

• Stretch fabric slightly as you stitch to help prevent breaking of seams in wear. If necessary, tissue may be used under the pressure foot in stitching mohair to keep from catching the foot in the loops.

• Seam finishes are not generally needed, except to prevent seam allowances from rolling. Edge stitching, zigzag stitching just back of the cut edge, or overcasting by hand helps to prevent the seam allowance from rolling.

4. Pressing

• Press all darts and seams as construction progresses. Be careful that you do not stretch knitted fabric.

• Set iron temperature according to fiber content of fabric.

• Use a seam roll or insert strips of paper under seam allowance edges to prevent imprints on right side of garment.

5. Linings and Interfacings

• Heavy double knits do not require lining.

• Lighter weight knits that may stretch as they are worn should be lined by the drum method, making the lining slightly tighter than the garment. This provides better support of the knit fabric. The drum method keeps the lining as a separate unit until it is attached at neckline or waistline of garment.

• It may be desirable to line entire garment with soft, lightweight fabric, such as voile, batiste, or other soft fabrics. But, if a knit tends to sag, lining will not keep it in shape.

• Interfacing is needed in necklines, behind facing of jacket fronts, collars, and cuffs. Buttonholes need support of an interfacing.

6. Buttonholes

• Bound buttonholes are most satisfactory in knits. As with any fabric, it is wise to make a sample buttonhole.

7. Hems

• Let garment hang at least 24 hours before marking hemline.

• A tailor's hem gives an inconspicuous hem finish to knit fabrics. Taping is not advised since it stiffens the fabric and creates useless bulk. Hemming stitches must be kept loose to prevent puckering the hem line.

8. Garments

• Knit garments may stretch out of shape unless stored flat. Let knit garments rest two or three days after wearing to restore their shape.

Do you like to ask friends over for a late, lazy breakfast or brunch, but detest all that scurrying around the kitchen in the morning to get it all on the table in time?

Relax, and add to your culinary repertoire, as I have recently done, a special coffee cake that's also quite good at suppertime or as a snack—in fact, you might even want to have one on hand for the hungry horde before or after Mardi Gras parades!

It's a sausage coffee cake, and I first tasted it last Christmas morning, when my daughter-in-law, Sue Breath, had whipped up a double batch for Christmas breakfast—and, of course, I wanted the recipe.

Sue referred me to the delightful cookbook, "Louisiana Entertains"—a collection of menus and recipes from the Rapides Symphony Guild in Alexandria, La. (Incidentally, or, not so incidentally, this was chosen as an official cookbook of the 1984 World's Fair in New Orleans.)

The cookbook was among the Christmas gifts which Sue and son Jack and their four sons, Shannon, Barrett, David and Holland, had given me that day—and I've been making good and delicious use of it!

This coffee cake freezes well, also, so it's a boon to a busy cook. Here's:

SAUSAGE COFFEE CAKE

1 lb. bulk sausage
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 egg, beaten
½ cup grated Swiss cheese
¼ tsp. Tabasco
1½ tsp. salt
2 Tbsp. chopped parsley
2 cups Bisquick buttermilk baking mix
¾ cup milk
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 egg yolk
1 Tbsp. water

Brown sausage and onions, drain. Add the next 6 ingredients. Make a batter of the Bisquick, milk and mayonnaise. Spread half of the batter in a 9X9X2-inch greased pan.

Pour in the sausage mixture, then spread the remaining batter on top. Mix the egg yolk and water and brush top. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until the cake leaves the edges of the pan. Cool 5 minutes before cutting into 3-inch squares.

This recipe doubles easily in a 9X13-inch pan, and freezes well and can be mixed up the day before and refrigerated, so that all you have to do in the morning rush is to take it out of the fridge and put in the oven and enjoy!

Gustin, Baker attend 1986 Conference on Tourism

JACKSON—Clarice Gustin and Connie Baker, Account Executives with Quality Inn—Diamondhead, attended the 1986 Governor's Conference on Tourism Jan. 19-21 in Jackson at the Ramada Renaissance Hotel.

Selling Mississippi's tourist assets was the focal point of the conference which featured in-depth sessions on marketing for more than 150 delegates.

During a Monday luncheon, Governor Bill Allain emphasized the importance of tourism as an economic development tool, and keynote speaker Karen Peterson, Davidson-Peterson Associates, Inc., New York, discussed "Tourism Marketing Challenges in the 80s and 90s."

Also on Monday, Eugene Dilbeck, director of the Oklahoma Tourism and Recreation Department, introduced the Travel Industry Association's "Discover America" marketing program designed to encourage Americans to travel within the U.S.

Other speaker topics included planning and promoting community events; an examination of travel markets; working with travel writers; the value of private sector tourism organizations; and sales and service techniques.

Gustin and Baker said the conference seminars provided practical information on how to attract tourist dollars to Hancock County and the Gulf Coast and commented that tourism development is an excellent way to enhance the local economy.

Superintendent interviews to begin

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Interviews of applicants for superintendent of the Bay Municipal School District will begin next week before both the school board and the search committee.

Board Member Betty Diboll had told the board Monday that the committee had narrowed the number of candidates to seven from a field of 44 and was preparing to conduct interviews.

Board President Walter Turcotte said he believed that the board should conduct the interviews and be allowed to review all applications for consideration of persons who board members might feel would make a good superintendent.

The board will have to interview the applicants anyway and since the seven applicants includes persons from out of state the board should conduct the interviews to prevent the applicants from having to come here twice, he said.

Tuesday, Search Committee Member James Ginn told the board while it had been "no easy task" he was grateful for the opportunity to serve on the committee.

"I believe every member of the committee has agonized over the decisions we have made, realizing the impact on the community this will have for years to come," he added.

Diboll told the board that she believed the committee's job was not completed.

The board approved a motion permitting the search committee to interview applicants when they were here for interviews with the board.

Diboll added that the committee would like to reserve the right to go back to the 44 applications to get other names if no satisfactory candidate was selected from the seven to be interviewed.

Following an executive session the board voted to add four additional names to the seven candidates selected by the search committee to be called for interviews.

The board was questioned as to why additional names were added and how these names were selected.

Turcotte told the group assembled at the meeting that state statutes require that the board itself select the superintendent and that he had picked the other candidates following a personal review of the 44 applications.

"We can get help from any source but it is our responsibility to hire the superintendent," he said.

Chamber board endorses college resolution

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, at its regular meeting Tuesday night, voted unanimously to oppose the closing of the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park campus, and to support the four-laning of Hwy. 603.

Chuck Benvenuti, board member and education committee chairman, presented the board a resolution opposing the closing of the USM-Gulf Park campus.

"We feel the Gulf Coast is a major population center in the state and our state educational facilities should be located in areas where population dictates," said Benvenuti.

"We also feel the loss of public higher education opportunities beyond junior college would discourage the acquisition of new business and industry, having a potential impact on Keesler Air Force Base, Ingalls Shipbuilding and NSTL," he concluded.

The resolution will be sent to Governor Bill Allain, state senators and representatives, USM President Aubrey Lucas and members of the State Institute for Higher Learning.

In another matter, Larry Breland, a concerned citizen, addressed the board seeking support of a petition now circulating in the county to have Hwy. 603 four-laned.

"Due to excessive automobile accidents and loss of lives, we feel the need to have this road four-laned has become a vital issue in Hancock County," said Breland.

"This is one of the major arteries in the county, and I travel a lot, but I would go 20 miles out of the way than travel 603," he continued.

The chamber board is publicly supporting the petition, and we urge all Hancock Countians to sign it," said Dick Thomas, chamber president.

"The chamber will also seek input from the State Highway Department concerning a study into traffic flow and number of accidents," he said, "since we understand the last study was done in 1982."

Thomas also stated that a letter voicing the chamber's unanimous support of this issue will be forwarded to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, state legislators, the governor, the district highway commissioner and the state highway department.

Vandalism continues

Disappearing signs become problem in Pearlington

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is again facing complaints about stolen street signs.

Edward Bourgeois, a Pearlington resident, addressed the board about the problem Monday.

He said the thefts have been so extensive in Pearlington that a driver for the Pearlington Volunteer Fire Department became lost last week looking for a structure fire.

Board President A.A. Kellar, whose district includes Pearlington, said the $1,700 in signs were put up specifically for the use of the fire department, ambulance service and other emergency vehicles.

The supervisor commented that it was especially difficult to provide signs for Pearlington because of difficulties in finding out the names and numbers of streets.

Kellar said many longtime Pearlington residents do not know the names and numbers of their streets.

Some of the missing signs have been found by the sheriff's department, Sheriff Ronald Peterson said.

They were recovered in a wooded area and had apparently been thrown there after being vandalized.

He said those signs will be returned to the county for replacement.

Kellar said replacing the signs that were not recovered is expected to be expensive.

"I just can't keep taking taxpayers' money and throwing it to the wind. There's just no way I can keep doing that," Kellar said.

He said he feels most of the vandalism is committed by youths and that parents of vandals can be charged with misdemeanors if law enforcement authorities find stolen signs.

Kellar said the signs had vanished "overnight."

"It's impossible to keep curb signs or stop signs or anything else."

Beat Five Supervisor James Travira said he also has a problem keeping signs. He said he put up several street signs last week and most of those were gone within a few days.

Kellar added that any type of assistance from neighborhood watch groups who may be able to report thefts of signs would be welcome.

Other than discussion, the board took no action on the sign complaint.

A second complaint on which the board was unable to take any action involved the alleged lack of hiring of local residents by construction contractors involved in the expansion of Borg Warner Chemical.

Kellar said the board has no authority to take action concerning the hiring practices of private industry other than to go on record asking that particular firms hire local residents if possible.

He said the board has received numerous complaints on the matter in the past, some of which concerned the Borg Warner expansion, and had gone on record requesting the hiring of Hancock Countians.

He said the only time the board has control over hiring for private industry is when an Economic Development Authority grant has been used to help that industry locate in Hancock County. The grants limit the number of outside workers brought into the county to a particular percentage.

Travira and Chancery Clerk Michael Nicaise said they met with Borg Warner officials last week and found no problems with the number of Hancock Countians working at Borg Warner.

However, Borg Warner is also unable to dictate the hiring practice of its contractors and subcontractors.

In other business Monday, the board:

—Accepted for the record a resolution from Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph requesting additional tax support from the county for the Hancock County School District's 1986-87 term.

—Accepted a bid of $300 per month from Louise French for janitorial service for the Courthouse Annex.

—Approved a request to advertise for a consultant for a Community Development Block Grant to fund development of a water system for the Steep Hollow and Catahoula communities.

—Agreed to place on record a report from Beat Four Supervisor Sam Pernicario concerning the theft of several batteries from equipment at the county landfill, which Pernicario said has been a recurrent problem; and —Agreed to readvertise for bids for preparation of meals for prisoners in the county jail.

County eyeing grant funding for welfare

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors may be able to obtain some help in providing new facilities for the County Welfare Department through grant funds.

Welfare Department Director Wallace Bradley told the board Monday that the federal government has available some matching funds that could finance new construction, but those funds would not be immediately obtainable.

The matching funds would total 50 percent of the cost of whatever square footage of the structure would be used for the food stamp program with 65 percent for the general administration section.

However, the county would have to provide funding for initial construction because the federal funds would be paid out in increments over 20 to 30 years, Bradley said.

In addition, the county would have no assurance that the federal funds would not be discontinued sometime during that period, leaving the county to pay that share of the remaining cost in addition to the anticipated cost.

He said those funds are the same ones currently provided to the county as matching funds to help operate and maintain the welfare department.

Bradley added that the welfare department, which now has 32 employees, has outgrown its present quarters on Nicaise Avenue and has had to cope with working in a building that needs repair.

He said a leaking roof is a major concern but other repairs and renovations are also needed, including a new heating and cooling system.

In addition, he is concerned because the department is supposed to be provided with computers during 1987 and he feels that the computers would not work properly in the present building.

The board authorized Bradley to contact South Mississippi Planning and Development District on behalf of the county to try to locate additional sources of grant funding, particularly some that would pay the initial construction costs.

Bradley said he hopes to be able to have a report on possible funding sources in time for the board's February 13 meeting.

Two injured, one killed in accident Saturday

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A Biloxi woman remains in serious condition Wednesday from injuries sustained last week in the same automobile accident on US-90 near Henderson Point where one man was killed and another injured.

Tammy Sackett, 22, of 4500 Briarfield Dr., is in reportedly stable but serious condition at Hancock General Hospital where she underwent surgery following the accident. Her injuries included internal bleeding and a fractured arm.

Mark Anthony Bounds, 26, of 202 McLauren Road, was killed when his Toyota collided with a Lincoln driven by Paul Leoni, 31 of 701 Nicholson Ave., Waveland.

Leoni, who was also transported to Hancock General Hospital, suffered a fractured knee in the accident.

According to Mississippi State Troopers, Bounds was in the wrong lane of traffic when the accident occurred.

single teacher to express regrets for signing.

Cameron added that after the circulation of the petition the only other mention was from teachers who did not get the opportunity to sign and wanted to add their support.

A junior high school teacher who asked not to be identified said Wednesday the only intimidation in connection with the petition came from those opposed to the circulation of the document.

"The very vocal few who were against the petition made life miserable for those who signed the petition," the teacher said.

School Board Member Betty Diboll stated she believed the teachers had a right to submit the petition.

"It would be a slam at the teachers who had signed and support Mr. Magee as a candidate for the superintendent's position not to accept this petition they submitted," she added.

BACKACHE

Research studies reveal certain clues which are signs of impending back problems. 1. carrying your head to one side. 2. a low shoulder. 3. a tilted hip. 4. pain at the base of your head or in the hips all indicate signals of developing spinal problems. These are clues that the bone framework of the spine is being twisted out of shape, leading first to a weak spine, inviting more serious complications. Weak spines are subject to serious spinal displacements which can pinch nerves and lead to internal damage. Chiropractic care enjoys a wide reputation in the correction of spinal structural problems. If your back aches, call your doctor of Chiropractic and prevent serious complications.

Coast Electric customer service manager retires

Samuel Pat Murphy Sr. of Bay St. Louis, director of the Coast Electric Member Services Department, will retire Friday.

Murphy, 61, began working at the cooperative in 1969 as member service specialist.

He quickly advanced through the ranks and was appointed director of the Member Services Department in 1970, according to Robert Occhi, assistant manager.

In his 17 year career with Coast Electric, Murphy was responsible for coordinating the association's information and energy management services.

"Through the years, I've seen Coast Electric mature into a highly progressive organization," commented Murphy. "I'm sure as the cooperative enters its fifth decade, its impact on the community will be

Soil Conservation News

By Doug Stephens

CATFISH POND

The interest in catfish farming in Hancock County continues to increase.

There are two main types of catfish ponds — those filled with water from wells and those filled with water from the runoff of a watershed.

This article will deal with catfish ponds that have a levee across a bottom and are supplied by runoff from a watershed.

This condition will be found in the northern part of Hancock County.

The ideal layout of a catfish pond for best management and production should not have any water shallower than four feet and none deeper than six feet.

The reason for this is there is no need to drain catfish ponds that are not over six feet deep to harvest fish.

In order to grade the catfish pond during construction, four foot and six foot contours are run below the permanent water line. Soil to build the dam and fill all of the area below the 6 foot contour is obtained between the water line and four foot contour.

Some soils will not permit cutting and shaping to the extent described above because of sand in the hill slopes. This may cause some shallow water in the pond.

The drainage area to supply water to the pond should be approximately three times the area of the permanent pool to maintain an adequate supply of water in the pond.

Too large drainage area would require a large expensive drainage structure through the dam.

The area must be pasture or woods, or a combination of both.

No cultivated land with pesticides can drain in the catfish pond without the risk of killing the fish and keeping the pond too muddy.

Production from these ponds are about the same as any other catfish ponds with the same level of management. The advantage of this pond is the elimination of an irrigation well. The estimated construction cost per acre is $1,100 per acre of water surface.

For more information, call or come by the SCS Office in Kiln, phone 255-3225.

Disunity among farmers

1985 Farm Bill best possible for troubled soybean farmers

Soybean farmers may be disappointed with certain provisions of the 1985 farm bill, but the bill is probably the best they could hope for under existing political realities.

John Baize, a staff vice president for the American Soybean Association, said while the bill, passed late last year, isn't all farmers wanted, it was the best bill possible in a climate of budget cuts.

Baize talked about the impact of the Food Security Act of 1985 to about 200 farmers and officials attending the annual Tri-State Soybean Forum in Vicksburg.

"Overall, I'd give this bill a C-minus as far as soybean farmers are concerned," Baize said. "That's not too bad considering that the best bill Congress ever passed got only about a C-plus."

Soybean farmers appear to be particularly disturbed about two aspects of the bill — one that removed a possible $35 per acre direct payment to farmers and another expected to lead to a lowering of the soybean loan rate.

Although the soybean loan rate of $5.02 available to soybean farmers was left unchanged for 1986, the rate can be cut 5 percent to $4.77 in 1986 by the secretary of agriculture.

"This could mean that the most you will be getting for soybeans in the foreseeable future is $4.77 a bushel," Baize told the farmers.

Baize also said lack of support from the Reagan administration and disunity among soybean farmers killed a proposed $35 per acre direct payment to soybean producers. The payment, included in the Senate version but eliminated in House action, would have been the first-ever direct payment to soybean farmers.

"Some farmers wanted the payment provision, some didn't and some didn't know whether they wanted it or not," Baize said. "The fact is that a lot of soybean farmers really didn't know what they wanted in the farm bill."

The Reagan administration also supported the $35 payment while the bill was under consideration in the Senate, but opposed it after the bill was sent to the House.

Baize said the authority of the secretary of agriculture to lower the soybean loan rate means farmers may have to live with soybean prices even lower than already-depressed levels.

But he said a lower loan rate is a step in the right direction in making U.S. farmers more competitive in foreign markets.

Krewe of Kids to parade Saturday

All area children are invited to participate in the Krewe of Kids parade Saturday at 2 p.m. in Bay St. Louis.

Sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Junior Auxiliary, the parade begins at North Bay Elementary School on Dunbar Avenue.

Children should be in costume and may walk or ride bikes, ponies or any non-motorized vehicle. Dogs are also welcome. Throws are optional and must be provided by participants.

The parade route follows Dunbar Avenue north to Boardman Street, east on Boardman to A Street, north on A Street to Leonhard Street, west on Leonhard to Dunbar, then south on Dunbar and returns to North Bay where the parade will disband.

In case of rain, the Krewe of Kids will march Monday, February 10, at 2 p.m.

4-H News

By Daney Jackson
Hancock County 4-H Youth Agent

About 4-H—The mission and objectives

This is the third in a series of articles about 4-H, the 4-H program in Hancock County, and how you can get involved in this youth education program.

The 4-H program is the Youth Development Phase of the Cooperative Extension Service.

As such, it has a mission of developing youth through the involvement of parents, other adults, and volunteers, who organize and conduct the learning experiences in a community setting.

The focus is on providing opportunities for youth and adults to interact together to develop skills, abilities, and understandings so that they may become greater participating and more influential members of their community.

The central aim of the 4-H Program is for youth to acquire a set of skills which will help them to meet their responsibilities as productive members of society.

More specifically, there are several objectives of the 4-H program.

The Youth Development Program seeks to help young people to:

1. Develop inquiring minds, an eagerness to learn, and the ability to apply science and technology.
2. To learn practical skills, to improve competencies, and to gain a reservoir of knowledge.
3. To make intelligent decisions, to solve problems, and to manage their own affairs in a fast changing world.
4. To acquire positive attitudes toward self and a feeling of self-worth.

5. To develop their potential by seeking and acquiring educational and vocational experience.

6. To improve skills in communication and self-expression.

7. To develop desirable interpersonal relationships with adults and other youth.

8. To maintain optimum physical and mental health.

9. To develop concern for and involvement in community and public affairs.

10. To increase leadership capabilities.

11. To develop socially acceptable behavior, personal standards, and values for living.

12. To develop abilities to perform as responsible productive citizens.

13. To use time wisely in attaining a balance in the various aspects of their lives — work, leisure, family, community, and self.

Anyone interested in learning more about 4-H or wishing to get involved either as an adult volunteer or as a member should contact the Hancock County Extension 4-H Youth Agent at 467-5456.

Mayors proclaim February American History Month

By Joe Pilet
Publicist, Friendship
Oak Chapter, NS DAR

Sponsored locally by the Friendship Oak Chapter of the NSDAR, the month of February has been nationally designated as American History Month.

Mayor John Longo Jr. of Waveland and Mayor Victor Frankiewicz of Bay St. Louis have issued a joint proclamation urging "all citizens to review the history of our heritage made possible through the services of outstanding leaders."

Feb. 22, 1732 was the birth date of George Washington of Westmoreland County, Virginia. Washington's accomplishments were many, but three were truly outstanding:

- 1) He commanded the Continental Army that won American independence from Great Britain in the Revolutionary War
- 2) He served as president of the convention that wrote the United States Constitution, and
- 3) He was the first president of the United States.

One homespun philosopher once said: "It is not fame, or name, or state—it's get up and get that makes men great."

Obviously, Washington was well endowed with "get-up-and-get."

Much of it he must have inherited from his mother, Mary Ball, second wife of Augustine Washington.

Mary Ball was 27 years old when on March 6, 1731 she married the widower, Augustine Washington, who was ten years older than she.

There were four children in his family, the oldest nearly full grown and Mary Ball Washington had her work cut out for her.

A year following their baby George was born.

The Washingtons were land poor. The house in which they lived had done an excellent job of making Washington look like a goody-good, priggish person.

Of this book Elbert Hubbard remarked "Possibly Washington could not tell a lie, but Weems was not thus handicapped." Today Weems' work, fortunately, is not accepted as a final authority.

It is true that Mary Ball Washington did smoke a pipe and it is not to be denied that she had "a temper" and frequently scolded, nagged and drummed into George's brain the classic virtues of industry, frugality and "truth-telling."

At one point in history we learn that George Washington once wrote to his mother saying that her habits were such that she would not be acceptable at Mount Vernon.

Washington looked after his mother, supplied her needs, and it's pretty certain she accepted with ingratitude.

It is a well-known fact that Washington had trouble with his teeth and in his day dentists couldn't solve all problems.

Washington wore some pretty crude false teeth that later became an interesting acquisition of the Smithsonian. Quoting from the "Smithsonian Experience" we have the following: "The rare and the curious, singular objects at the Smithsonian's Museum of History and Technology include the most celebrated rarity among U.S. postage issues, the 24-cent invert of 1918, a set of George Washington's false teeth made of gold and hippo teeth (upper) elephant and hippo (lower)..."

Should you wish to see these teeth when you are next in Washington and browsing at the Smithsonian you are in for a disappointment. The teeth are said to have been stolen!

When Washington was 14 his school days were over. He was tall, Martha had her good points, apparently education wasn't one of them. Washington wrote the first drafts of all important letters it was necessary for her to send. She wasn't much of a housekeeper either.

At Mount Vernon a woman was hired to oversee the household.

Smithsonian may boast of acquiring Washington's false teeth, but they will never acquire the letters George Washington wrote to Martha, and he wrote many hundreds.

After his death Martha destroyed every letter.

George Washington might have appreciated the gesture, but historians have yet to forgive her.

Of George Washington he was indeed "first in the hearts of his countrymen." For almost 20 years he guided this country as the head of a household guides a family, and Mr. Weems you told the truth when you said he was sterlingly honest!

We honor the memory of that strong and wise man.

Ever dedicated to public good, at age 57 Washington, with left hand on the open Bible, repeated the presidential oath and added, "So help me God," and God did.

George Washington's teeth weren't wooden three rooms downstairs and the children all slept in the attic.

Mary Ball Washington was a strong person both mentally and physically and was the mother of six children, George was the firstborn, and biographers say he strongly resembled his mother.

The Reverend Mason L. Weems, George Washington's first biographer, wrote a book called "Life of Washington."

Some 50 editions of Weems' book were printed—no other volume of that time could compete with the popularity of Weems' book.

The book was written "for the betterment of the young" and Weems well developed, was a good horseman and wrestler. He, as a young adult, worked among the Indians and on dress occasions wore "full Indian regalia" with the exception of the war paint.

Biographers have given us a wealth of information on the loves in Washington's life...of his marriage to Mrs. Daniel Parke Custis, a widow with two children who was 26 years old (same age as Washington).

In Washington's account book is an interesting item: "One Engagement Ring, 2 Pounds, 16 Shillings. (How much is two pounds and sixteen shillings in U.S. currency?)

St. Vincent de Paul sets fund raising projects

The St. Clare Conference of the St. Vincent de Paul Society has scheduled a series of fundraising events for February and March.

The money raised by the events will be used to help provide assistance to needy families, according to Fundraising Chairperson Bea Gallegos.

Events will begin on two Saturdays, Feb. 8 and Feb. 15, with collections of donations at US-90 traffic lights in Bay St. Louis and Waveland. The collections will be taken between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

On March 9, the society will sponsor a Mexican Dinner at the Waveland Civic Center starting at noon. Tickets will be $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for children and take-out orders will be available.

Also on March 9, the society will sponsor the first annual St. Vincent de Paul Sweetheart Contest.

The contest will include five categories divided according to age groups. Sweethearts will be chosen in categories from two to four, five to eight, nine to 12, 13 to 15 and 16 to 19.

All winners will receive trophies, paras and roses, with the overall winner to receive a gift certificate. In addition, winners in the 13 to 15 and 16 to 19 categories will ride in Waveland's St. Patrick's Day parade.

Applications are available at the St. Vincent de Paul Society Thrift Shop in the Waveland Civic Center, at Peterman's Grocery or from society members.

The application deadline will be March 5. More information is available from Gallegos at 467-2176 or 467-0703.

In addition to the fundraising events, the society is also raising funds through the thrift shop, which sells donated items.

The store was founded last year by Louise Gibbens. Rosalie Fernandez serves as coordinator. During its first year of operations in 1985, the St. Clare conference assisted 84 families in addition to providing food and clothing at a total of $5,886 in donated funds; donated $3,000 to Catholic Relief Services for Ethiopia; managed Federal Emergency Management Agency funds for 1985; provided clothing and shoes for a mission in Saltillo, Mexico; and sent $500 to the Marrero, La., St. Vincent de Paul Society to assist in feeding victims of Hurricane Juan.

ETV Brief

FARMWEEK

After weeks of competition and judging at the local and district level, the top 32 farm animals shown by Mississippi 4-H and FFA members will be sold at the Dixie National Junior Round-up Sale of Champions.

"Farmweek" reporters will visit the Dixie National Rodeo and Livestock Show on the sale date and will show highlights on a program to air Monday, Feb. 10, at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

Another segment of "Farmweek" will be devoted to a conversation with Don Butler, new president of the National Cattlemen's Association, concerning new beef research and promotions programs.

As on every second Monday of each month, "Farmweek" will report the latest timber prices.

Mississippi Indians Part I

Denials by U.S. Government put Indian tribes—including Choctaws—on a long, downhill journey.

(Part 1 of a 2 part report on the Choctaw Indians of Mississippi)

The unique ability of this nation's original inhabitants to adapt to the environment—whether that of raw nature, or so-called civilization, or governmental precepts—has been a most valuable characteristic of Mississippi's tribe of Choctaw Indians.

Without this ability to tough it out they would have perished from the earth long ago. In fact, they almost did. But they didn't, and their modern resurgence is the emphasis of the second part of this report. But, the bad news first.

Once the Choctaws claimed more than four million acres of land in the deep southern region of the United States. Here they had their villages and from them they set out in many directions to hunt and fish.

Their women tilled small plots of round around the villages—growing corn, pumpkins, beans and other subsistence crops.

Their origin is legend. It is said that the Choctaws long ago migrated to the Mississippi area from the Pacific Northwest when the population there became so great the land was no longer able to support them. They traveled in search of a home, making a pole into the earth at their camps each evening, and heading in the direction of the pole's leanings the next day.

At Nanih Waiya in Neshoba County, Mississippi, their pole stood erect the next morning and thusly central Mississippi became their home.

Yet another legend would have the Choctaws emerging after other tribes from their "mother mound" at Nanih Waiya.

From earliest times the Choctaws were a peaceable nation, yet they suffered in their encounters with white nationals during the period of exploration.

By 1786 they had signed a treaty of conciliation with the United States. Soon thereafter, under the leadership of Chief Pushmataha, they fought beside Andrew Jackson against the British at the Battle of New Orleans, in 1814.

Yet, the Choctaws' friendship with the U.S. went unrewarded for a long period. In 1805 the Choctaws gave up claim to their four million acre territory which included the Gulf Coastal region, for $50,000 and an annual payment of $3,000.

Other cessions followed to the U.S. government through treaties signed in 1816 and again in 1820.

Finally, by the Treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek in 1830, the Choctaw nation was forced to cede its remaining land to the U.S.

The centuries following the discovery of America saw the Choctaw population greatly reduced by epidemic diseases.

By the end of the first quarter of the 19th century Choctaw population in Mississippi and Alabama totaled only about 30,000 persons.

Then began the U.S. government's removal program of the Indian tribes to ostensibly less valuable land in a state that was given the Choctaw name "okla homa", which means red people.

Most of Mississippi's Choctaw tribe were forced to join the Trail of Tears migration westward, but a remnant refused to go and stayed behind as squatters or sharecroppers.

Those who set out for Oklahoma suffered from the hardships of the journey and from heartbreak and disease. Many died en route.

But over 8,000 Choctaws stayed in Mississippi relying on false promises of land ownership. The pre-removal population of 19,200 Choctaws in Mississippi shrank to only 1,253 in 1910.

Next came a notorious influenza outbreak during World War I which took an additional toll of about 20 percent of the Indian remnant still here.

The survivors who had taken up farming to subsist had to contend with the boll weevil ravages of the cotton crop in east central Mississippi where they lived.

Their plight, virtually as an endangered species, finally was brought to the attention of the U.S. Congress through hearings held in Union, Mississippi, in 1917.

Then followed establishment of a Choctaw Agency in Philadelphia in 1918 and through the Bureau of Indian Affairs the stage was being set for Indian assistance in the areas of economics, education and health.

(Next installment traces the development of government programs and attitudes which ultimately have led to a rebirth and amazing resurgence of the Choctaw Tribe under dual citizenship and self-governing prerogatives. Choctaw Tribal Chief Phillip Martin sheds light on the Choctaws in today's environment in Sunday's issue.)

Pirates capture Deep South title with diamond defense against PRC

The Pass Christian Pirates claimed their first Conference Championship since the 1976-77 season at home Friday night by defeating Pearl River Central 66-51.

The Pirates who trailed in the Deep South Conference title event 14-12 at the end of the first quarter went to a diamond and one defense to start the second quarter.

In the diamond defense the Pirates were able to stop Pearl River's high scoring forward, Russell Lee.

Lee, who had 8 points in the first quarter, could only manage 4 more for the rest of the game.

The Pirates took a 31-24 lead into the locker room at halftime.

In the third quarter the Pirates outscored Pearl River 17-8 and had a comfortable 16-point lead going into the fourth period.

Pearl River made a good run at the Pirates' early in the fourth period, closing to within 9 points, but the Pirates went on a 12 to 2 run.

And baskets by Kevin Crockett and Kevin Harrison, with less than three minutes to go, upped the Pirates' lead to 17 points and the celebration started.

Joel Hatcher led the Pirates in scoring with 21 points, Charlie Barnes had 20, and point guard J. W. Dedeaux chipped in 10 points.

"Charlie Barnes had a great game. He did a good job on the offensive end of the floor, and that along with Kevin Crockett's and Kevin Harrison's defensive efforts were key factors in us winning the game," said Coach Ken Hudson.

"It felt real good to see the kids smile toward the end of the game.

They were on the floor and you could tell they were a very proud group of guys," Hudson added.

TUESDAY NIGHT

Pass High ran their record to 19-4 Friday night as they defeated St. John's in Gulfport 88-53.

John Dedeaux, Joel Hatcher and Charlie Barnes combined for 54 of the Pirate's 88 points.

Dedeaux led the Pirates with 21 points, Hatcher 18 and Barnes 15.

The Pirates' next game will be Friday at Long Beach.

Lady Pirates riding four game streak

The Lady Pirates won their fourth game in a row Tuesday night on the road against St. John with an 82-31 decision over the Lady Eagles.

After taking a 36 to 20 halftime lead, the Pirates exploded for 30 third-quarter points to control the game.

Kim Joseph led all scorers with 22 points, hitting 10 out of 11 field goals in the second half, and Hope Bonney connected on 21 points, making 9 out of 11 free throws.

Auida Buchanan contributed 17 points and Angel Moran added 15.

Moran pulled off the team's first "triple-double" of the year by scoring 15 points, handing out 16 assists, and grabbing 10 rebounds.

Bonney scored 21 points, passed for 12 assists and added 9 steals.

Quantella Lee added 7 rebounds and 7 steals.

The team's competition for Friday and Saturday will be arch-rivals Long Beach and Hancock North Central, respectively.

FINAL HOME GAME

The Lady Pirates played their last home game of the season Friday against Pearl River Central in a battle for second place in the Deep South Conference.

Both teams entered the contest with a 6-3 conference record, and the Lady Pirates jumped out to a 12-8 edge in the first quarter led by Kim Joseph, Ouida Buchanan, Angel Moran and Aungilete Dedeaux.

These four seniors, playing in their last home game ever for the Lady Pirates, scored all 12 of those points.

Junior Hope Bonney dipped in with 4 points in the second quarter as Pearl River battled back to tie the game at halftime, 20-20.

Pearl River took the lead in the third quarter and led by 7 points midway in the 4th quarter before the Lady Pirates put on an exciting rally for a 42-35 victory.

After a time out, the team pulled together despite trailing the game and being in serious foul trouble.

"We just made some adjustments and talked about believing in ourselves," said Coach Kline. "In two earlier games this year in which we trailed, the team made comebacks only to fall short of victory. This time we were determined to come all the way back."

Our seniors were awesome down the stretch," said Kline.

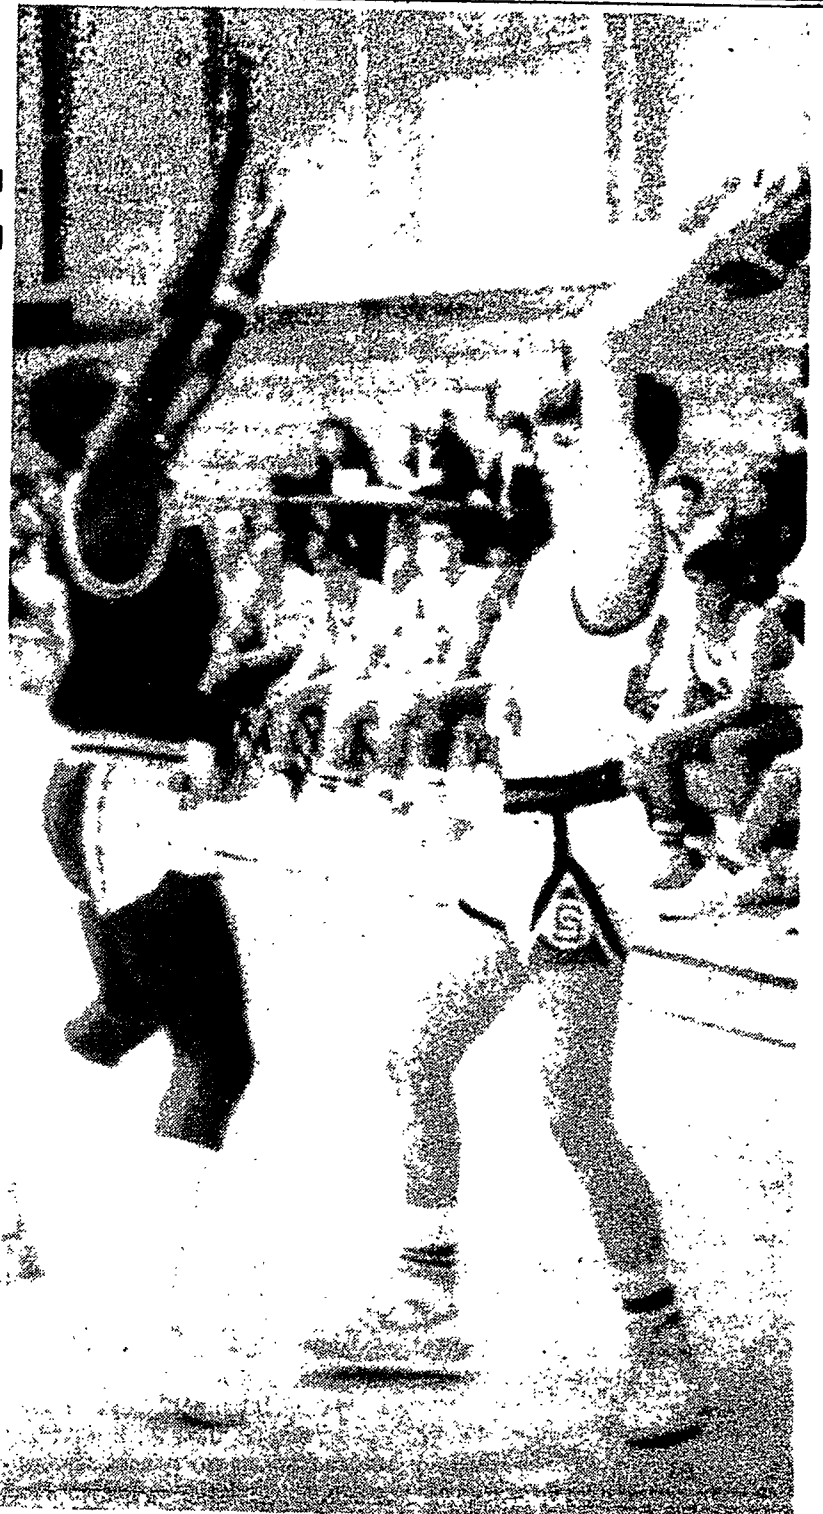

"Kim and Ouida hit some big baskets, Angel controlled the bounds, and Aungilete came up with four steals. Also, it's great to have such a ball handler and hustler like Hope," the coach said.

"Likewise, the rest of the team has been so positive, encouraging the starters and accepting their roles. Tonight was truly a team effort," said Kline.

"Individually, Ouida Buchanan led all scorers with 15 points and Kim Joseph added 10.

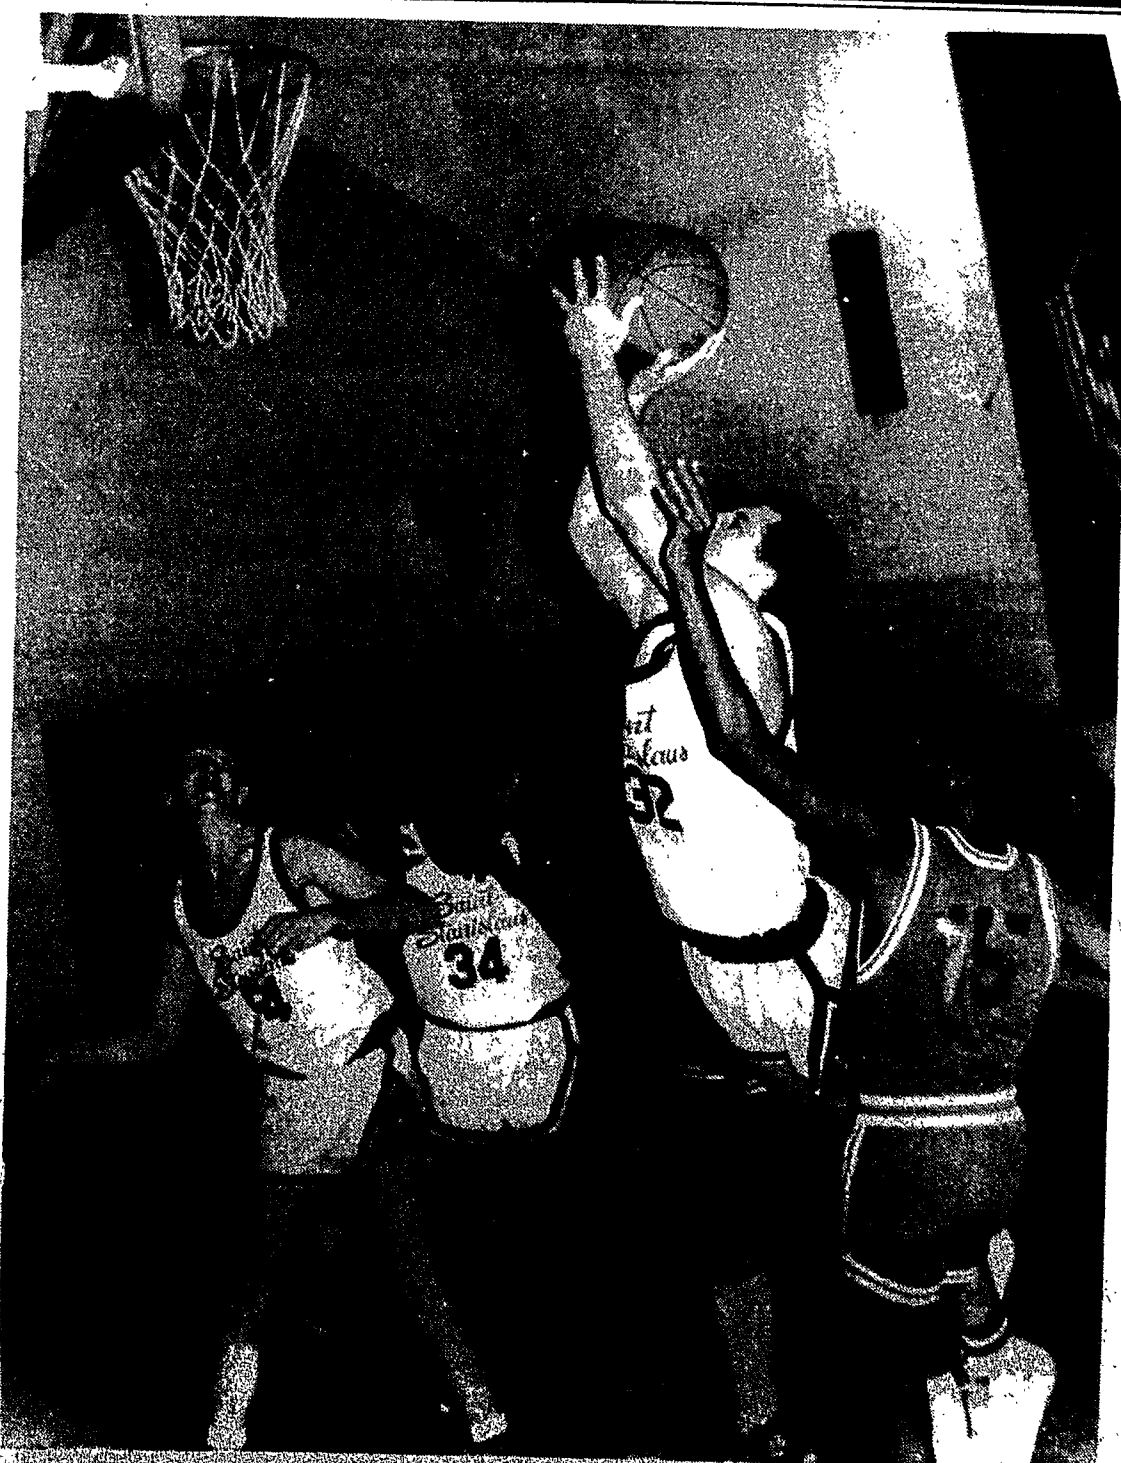

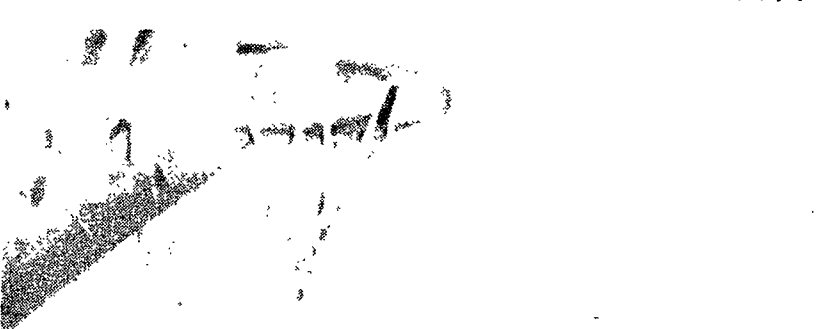

Angel Moran led the team with 12 rebounds.

The Pirates finished the conference with a 7-3 record and are 11-5 overall.

exercise to lose weight.

As people age, the metabolism slows, their activity level is decreased and their caloric consumption remains steady or even increases.
Therefore, countless numbers of adults are overweight.

Physical educators and exercise physiologists have long emphasized that simply looking slim and healthy isn't necessarily conducive to true health, but most people are so concerned about their bulging waistline and being "overweight" that they sometimes forget the essential components of being healthy and physically fit.

A person's body weight is important, but what is more important is the total amount of body fat, usually expressed as a percentage of body weight (or percent body fat).

A person may weigh much more than the average weight based on height-weight standards, yet still be "underfat" in terms of the body's total quantity of fat. This may be the case with athletes such as weightlifters and wrestlers.

An athlete's excess weight is primarily because of muscular hypertrophy (growth) and not increased body fat content.

Likewise, body fat weighs less than lean muscle mass and although you may be at your "ideal" body weight, you may in fact be grossly "overfat!"

It is easy to be deceived by how you look. You may weigh the same as you did 10 years ago, but you may be getting fatter.

The normal range of body fat is approximately 12-17 percent for young men and 20-25 percent for women. Some athletes have much less, but one should try to maintain body fat within this range.

Two common techniques for assessing body fat are hydrostatic (underwater) weighing and skinfold measurements. With the underwater weighing method an individual is weighed while complet-ly submerged in water. A person's loss of weight in water equals the weight of the volume of water displaced by his body.

After body volume is calculated,
the density of the person is computed as his weight in air (not underwater weight) divided by his volume. The percent of fat in the body can then be determined from a simple equation that incorporates body density.

Underwater weighing is one of the most accurate methods for assessing the body's total content of fat.
However, this technique requires sophisticated laboratory equipment and sensitive procedures.

Because about 50 percent of the total body fat is located in deposits beneath the skin, body fat can be estimated from skinfold measurements. The procedure requires firmly grasping a fold of skin and subcutaneous (below the skin) fat with the thumb and index finger and measuring the thickness with a special caliper.

The most common areas for taking skinfold measurements are at the bicep, tricep, subscapular, and the suprailiac sites. Skinfold measurements are usually used with an equation designed to predict percent body fat.

If possible, a person should have his body fat content assessed by an exercise specialist or physical educator before starting a program of fat reduction. When attempting to lose weight, it is preferable to lose as much body fat as possible without a loss in muscle tissue mass.

Dieting without exercise is an ineffective method for weight reduction because as much as 25 percent of weight loss through dietary restriction may be a loss of muscle tissue.
However, exercise appears to protect against muscle tissue loss.
Thus, more of the weight loss is fat loss.

The most sensible way to reduce body weight is through some reasonable combination of diet and exercise. The best physical activities for weight control are those that use large muscle groups, are continuous, and can be performed for a long period of time (i.e. walking, jogging, cycling, swimming).

These activities are primarily aerobic in nature, thus allowing fat to be burned as the source of energy.
Although other anaerobic activities may be beneficial for muscle tone and agility, they are not nearly as productive in terms of fat-burning potential.

Tax checkoff will help protect rare plants

JACKSON—Price's potato bean, Alabama snow wreath, pondberry and bog spice bush. Not familiar names to weekend gardeners, but they may be of more value than some of our more ordinary flowers and vegetables.

These plants are examples of rare species in danger of disappearing, but they need to be saved and studied, says Ken Gordon, director of the Mississippi Natural Heritage Program.

"The bog spice bush, for example, is a rare shrub of southeastern Mississippi which has a distinctive lemon-pine scent. Who knows, it may hint of some unknown chemical compounds," Gordon says.

"Each living species produces unique chemical compounds which science is only beginning to discover. Almost half of our medical prescriptions contain drugs of natural origin. Some of these natural compounds can be synthesized," Gordon explained, "but most are still obtained more cheaply from their natural sources."

Since many of the most important plant sources have not been domesticated successfully, it is necessary to protect them in the wild. Scientists have investigated only five percent of the world's plant species for pharmaceutical use, but rare plants are vanishing at the rate of one per day.

The extreme rarity of the spice bush concerns naturalists and scientists who fear the plant could easily become extinct before its role in the environment, or its value to man, is fully understood.

"Man's future needs are unpredictable, so a species is truly useless only when it is extinct," says Gordon.
"It's foolish to allow the last populations of this, or any species, to disappear through design or neglect."

Now Mississippians can help protect rare plants like the bog spice bush, as well as endangered animal species, nongame wildlife and unique natural areas by contributing to the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Program on their state income tax form.

This new "checkoff" allows taxpayers to voluntarily donate all or any part of their total refund due by simply writing in that amount on Line 28 of the form.

For further information about the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Program and the income tax checkoff, servation at 961-5300.

Dynamite takes season opener

Dynamite, the Girls Under-12 Bay Area Youth Soccer team sponsored by Gifts-n-Gold, opened its spring season Saturday with an explosive 5-0 victory over Slidell's Red Hots.

Susanne Cameron scored two goals and Renee' Le Bourgeois, Day Hays and Kristy Heitzmann each scored one goal.

Erin O'Brien assisted on the goal
by Hays.

Four players were absent due to illness and Whitney White had to be taken off the field during the first half, another flu victim.

This was Dynamite's first game of the Spring Season which will end with District and State Championships in April and May.

Ladner publishes article

Coach J. Larry Ladner, an assistant professor of athletic administration and coaching at the University of Southern Mississippi, recently published an article in the Coaching Clinic magazine.

Ladner's article, entitled, "Fundamentals of Shooting the Jump-Shot," appeared in the December issue of the periodical for coaches and athletic administrators.

In the article, Ladner addressed main components of the shot: stance, center of gravity, and position, grip, motion and release of the ball. He said many shots are missed because of poor maintenance or lack of understanding of the importance of fundamental details.

Ladner, known to some as the "Ambassador of Basketball" in Mississippi, has dedicated his life and career to promoting, coaching and teaching the game of basketball.

During his 11 seasons as head coach at Picayune Memorial High School, Ladner established himself as one of the more successful coaches in Mississippi prep history, posting a record of 253 wins and 82 losses.

He built the Maroon Tide into a state basketball power. His teams won many in-season tournaments in addition to a South Big Eight Conference championship, district championships, a South Mississippi championship and a second place finish for the overall state championship.

Since joining USM in 1971, Ladner has served as a clinician throughout the southeastern United States and is in frequent demand to speak at clinics in this country and abroad.

For the past 10 years, Ladner has directed a very successful basketball coaching seminar on the USM campus, an event that has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in the South.

STRESS FRACTURES

Q. I jog about five miles three times a week. Should I be worried about bone fatigue and stress fractures?

A. Someone like yourself most likely could risk developing a stress fracture.

Distance running and basketball, which demand numerous repetitive actions, place enormous strain on bones and can eventually cause bone fatigue or stress fractures.

A stress fracture, at one time called a fatigue fracture of a march fracture—because the injury was first noticed in military recruits—in a minute crack in the bone.

The fracture occurs not from any major traumatic episode, but from a continued stressful use of the foot or leg. The bone doesn't separate or move from its position.

Stress fractures usually occur in bones of the lower extremity. Specifically, the metatarsal bone of the foot; the fibula, which is the slender outside longitudinal bone of the leg; the tibia, the stronger bone of the leg; and the os calcis, or the heel bone are the most often affected.

Stress fractures which involve bones other than those of the lower extremity are quite rare. They have been found in the first rib in certain athletes who use their upper extremities constantly, such as rowers and tennis players. Gymnasts may develop stress fractures of the forearm, even of the back, but again, these are rare when compared to stress fractures of the lower extremities.

People who suddenly increase their level of physical activity may develop stress fractures. Changing your jogging distance from three to six miles, for instance, may place strains on legs unprepared for the increased mileage.

Pain will be the first symptom. Stress fracture pain is localized with some soft-tissue swelling. A runner may be able to walk easily, but running may be extremely painful.

Initial x-rays of the stress fracture are usually negative, making diagnosis difficult. A later examination of the injured area may show healing on the x-ray. In some cases, the physician may do a bone scan to confirm his clinical diagnosis.

Usual treatment for stress fractures is to stop any activity which may have caused the injury. A metatarsal stress fracture, for example, will require no cast, but about six to 10 weeks of healing. To maintain conditioning while the stress fracture is healing, a runner should swim or bicycle. Once the tenderness is gone, the athlete may ease back into normal activity.

Bone is a living and dynamic tissue. It must be allowed to accommodate the stresses one places upon it.

ANKLE SPRAIN

Q. I recently sprained my ankle playing basketball. What exactly constitutes a sprain and how long should I wait before starting to play again?

A. An ankle sprain is one of the most common sports injuries.

The sprain usually occurs while taking a step, when one's foot turns in and down, causing ligaments on the outside of the ankle joint to stretch. As the ankle ligaments stretch, they may begin to tear, either partially or completely. Three ligaments on the outside of the ankle comprise what are known as the lateral ankle ligaments. Of these three ligaments, the one in front is almost always the one that is damaged.

If you suffer an ankle injury, you first should have x-rays taken to make sure that there has not been a fracture. Immediate treatment of the injured area is equally important, because it helps swelling and begins the process of rehabilitating the injured ankle.

One method of treatment that can be put into use right away is the ICE method. In this case, the "I" stands for immobilization, the "C" stands for compression and the "E" stands for elevation. When you have finished these three steps, then add ice to stop any internal bleeding and help decrease swelling.

In other words, the basic treatment for sprains requires four steps for proper healing; stop using the ankle; wrap an elastic bandage around the injured area to compress the soft tissues of the ankle, carefully applying the bandage so that the circulation is not reduced; elevate the ankle to a level slightly higher than the knee, and apply ice. Following these four steps will enable the ankle to begin the healing process and prepare you for the next phase, which is rehabilitation.

There are several views on the best way to treat sprained ankles. Some of these concern whether or not a cast, special brace or compression bandage should be used.

Many sports medicine physicians find the most effective components for rehabilitation are allowing the ankle to support small amounts of weight for short periods of time, combined with intermittent application of ice to the ankle and exercise to keep the ankle mobile. This method has proven particularly effective for the athlete, who is anxious to return to action.

So-called partner exercises are the best for accomplishing this process. With these exercises, ice is applied to the ankle for approximately 15 minutes, then the injured person's foot is pushed and pulled gently against the slight resistance of a friend or trainer.

Stay below your threshold of pain and never turn the foot to one side or the other. These exercises should be done for five minutes, three or four times a day for maximum effectiveness.

It's difficult to say when someone should begin any athletic activity after a sprain. This decision is based on how the ankle feels, and on physical tests that can be performed by a physician. While many athletes who have access to training facilities can return to their activities in as little as two weeks, it's important to remember that the ankle ligaments need to be protected while they are healing. Returning to strenuous physical activity too soon after such an injury could cause further damage.

Dr. Ken Gibson, head track coach at the University of Mississippi, has been named to the United States track and field staff for the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea.

"We are honored that the Olympic Committee has selected Ken for this important assignment," said Ole Miss Athletic Director Warner Alford. "It is a real tribute to his coaching ability and his dedication to track and field. The Olympic movement is very important to our nation and it is satisfying to have one of our own directly involved in the training process of those athletes who will represent us in 1988."

Gibson, who is in his first year as head track coach at Ole Miss, will serve as one of the assistant managers for the 1988 United States team. He was chosen for the assignment by the International Competition Committee of the Athletics Congress (TAC), a 40-member committee chaired by John Chaplin of Washington State University.

TAC named Stan Huntsman of the University of Texas as head coach of the men's team, while Terry Crawford, also of Texas, was picked as head coach of the women.

Men's assistant coaches include Dean Hayes (Middle Tennessee), Tom Pagani (Fresno State), Russ Rogers (Fairleigh Dickinson), and Joe Vigil (Adams State). Assistant coaches for the women will be Fred Thompson (Atoms TC) and Dave Rodda (Coast Athletics).

Al Buehler of Duke is the head trainer of the men. His assistants include Gibson, Dean Ingram (Seattle, Wash.), and Joe Newton (York High School, Elmhurst, NY).

The latest appointment marks the fourth time for Gibson to be selected for international competition. He was a member of the 1974 U.S. team which met the Soviets in a dual meet at Duke University, the 1983 World Championships team in Helsinki, Finland, and the 1983 indoor team which participated in Milan, Italy and Cosford, England.

Currently in his 23rd year as a head track coach, including 20 years on the collegiate level, Dr. Gibson is a native of Brooklyn, N.Y. where he began his track coaching career in 1961 at Boys High School. His teams there captured three outdoor city titles, two indoor city championships, four Brooklyn Borough crowns, and one cross country title.

He moved to the collegiate ranks in 1984 when he was named track coach at Florida A&M University. In 1986 he became track coach at Grambling State University, serving one season before accepting the track coaching position at Kentucky State, where he remained the next 12 years.

His 1971 Kentucky State team won the NCAA College Division National Championship and three of his relay teams and one individual athlete ranked among the Top 10 worldwide in 1976.

Following the 1978-79 season, Dr. Gibson became men's and women's track and field and cross country coach at Ole Dominion University when the Monarchs started their track program. While at Old Dominion, his Lady Monarch team of only seven athletes finished second in the 1981 Virginia Women's State Collegiate Championships.

Wild Turkey Federation to host annual meeting

The Mississippi Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation will hold its 5th annual meeting Feb. 21 and 22 at the Metro Ramada Inn in Jackson.

All turkey-hunting enthusiasts are invited to attend.

The program will feature a banquet and auction on the 21st, and turkey-hunting seminars and calling contests on the 22nd.

On Friday night, Feb. 21, beginning at 6 p.m., there will be a banquet and auction of limited edition prints of wild-turkey paintings, ceramics, wood carvings and other wild turkey collectibles, along with knives and shotguns made exclusively for the federation.

Ray Eye, owner of Ozark Maintain Turkey Calls in Dittmer, Mo., and winner of numerous national turkey-calling championships, and Rob Keck, executive vice president of the NWTFF in Edgefield, S.C., will be guest speakers.

Tickets are $35 and include a one-year membership in the federation. On Saturday, Feb. 22, beginning at 9 a.m., the Mississippi State Chapter will hold its annual meeting. New officers will be elected, and several seminars and demonstrations will be given on wild turkey calling, hunting and safety.

Ole Miss athletes fare well in classroom

Student-athletes at the University of Mississippi compiled an impressive academic record during the recently completed first semester, it was announced here this week by Athletic Director Warner Alford.

"During a period when so much has been publicized about the need to upgrade academic standards throughout the nation, it is very gratifying to see the continued progress our student-athletes are making as they prepare for their future," Alford said.

"Our coaches and department administrators offer genuine support in making sure our athletes have every opportunity to excel in the classroom. I think results of this latest marking period simply points out that our efforts are working."

A total of 89 students involved in athletics at Ole Miss maintained a grade point average of 3.00 or better during the first semester. Fifty-eight students were included on the University of Mississippi Athletic Association honor roll, 17 made the Dean's Honor Roll (3.50 to 3.74), and 14 earned Chancellor's Honor Roll status (3.75 to 4.00).

"I can't remember having a football team pass as many hours and win as many individual awards as our 1985 squad," said head football coach Billy Brewer. "You always expect to lose a few players to grade problems, but that hasn't been the case this year. I'm proud of that."

According to Assistant Athletic Director David Wells, five members of the 1985 team graduated at mid-year. They included quarterback Kent Austin, wide receiver Jamie Holder, tight end Michael Smith, linebacker Dan Boyce, and cornerback Eric Truitt.

Austin picked up two major academic awards when he was selected one of 12 players to receive the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete Award as well as the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship.

Safety Jeff Noblin and guard Danny Hoskins earned second team Academic All-America honors, while the Rebels had seven players make the Academic All-Southeastern Conference squad, which ranked third in the league behind Kentucky and Vanderbilt.

Julie Link, a member of the Lady Rebel volleyball team, also earned Academic All-SEC honors in her sport.

Noblin and Hoskins were joined on the Academic All-SEC team by Austin, guard Jud Alexander, tackle Bob Cheatham, defensive tackle Benton Reed, and tackle Jay Schimmel.

"We are committed to making sure our student-athletes are given every chance to graduate, even if they have already finished their athletic eligibility," said Alford.

In the latest graduation report submitted to the State College Board, the University of Mississippi, with 65 percent of its athletes graduating, ranked as the highest among Division I schools in Mississippi. In fact, four former athletes graduated at the end of the fall semester.

It is not unusual to have several former Rebels now in the professional ranks enrolled at Ole Miss during their off-season.

"I would be remiss if I didn't signal out the efforts of David Wells and his staff," Alford added. "We're doing a good job in the academic area and making sure we carry out the real mission of the University of Mississippi."

Swallow-tailed kite symbol of wild Mississippi

JACKSON—A bird of Southern river swamps, the swallow-tailed kite, symbolizes the beauty and majesty of those vanishing bottomland hardwoods. A distinctive scissor-like tail makes it easily identifiable above the wooded bottoms of the lower Pearl and Pascagoula Rivers.

Now, this soaring bird is the symbol of a new program to help Mississippi wildlife. Mississippi's innovative income tax checkoff allows taxpayers to donate all or any part of their state income tax refund ($1 or more) to help protect threatened and endangered animals and plants, unique natural areas, and nongame wildlife, such as the swallow-tailed kite.

Monies donated through the checkoff could be used to save a critical piece of bottomland hardwood habitat. Such a purchase or lease would protect the home of the swallow-tailed kite and a rich diversity of other wildlife and plant species.

Taxpayers can donate to the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Program and its income tax checkoff by writing in the amount they wish to contribute on Line 28 of the Mississippi income tax form. All donations are tax deductible on the following year's return.

The Wildlife Heritage Program and the funds generated by the checkoff are administered by the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation. Contact the Department at P. O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205 for additional information.

SUPER-EARLY TOMATOES

Tomatoes are without a doubt the one garden crop worth taking the time and trouble to bring in early. But a presession harvest requires an especially early sowing—in the middle of winter in most cases. Don't be put off by that, though: with just a little extra horticultural effort you can have the earliest tomatoes in town!

You'll need to start your plants yourself, since nurseries don't usually carry seedlings at this time of year. In choosing a variety, you should, of course, avoid the long-season indeterminate tomatoes. On the other hand, the taste of some super-short-season varieties hardly justifies the effort required to grow them. Better choices for early-season production are such small-fruited container varieties as Small Fry or Tiny Tim, or the compact bush versions of larger-fruited tomatoes.

Start your seeds in a flat or small pot. You can buy soil mix or make your own, but it must have good texture to resist the compaction caused by frequent watering. Put the containers in a spot that will receive at least eight hours a day of good light: near a south-facing window, for example, or under a good grow light. Keep the containers warm (above 55°F) and well watered.

Once your seedlings have germinated and set out their first true leaves, prick them out into a slightly deeper flat or individual pots, adding extra nutrients to each container before transplanting. When the plants are fairly well developed—bushy, with healthy, thick stems—they'll be ready to move on to larger containers. Dwarf cultivars should be transferred to eight- or ten-inch pots and full-size varieties to two-gallon containers. Again, add extra nutrients for the plants to feed on. Some of the vines may have already developed flowers at this stage. You can leave the blooms alone if you're growing dwarf cherry-type tomatoes, but you'll need to prune the premature blossoms from the larger varieties until the plants have had a chance to recover from transplanting.

After they've become established, determinate varieties will start putting out lots of blossoms. You can encourage fruit-set by gently vibrating each flower with a pencil or small brush. Do this once a day, preferably between about 11:00 A.M. and 3:00 P.M. Indeterminate plants will need to be staked; a 36" stick inserted to the bottom of the pot along one side should offer sufficient support.

What you do next depends on where you want your plants to produce their crop of fruits. If you're going to keep them in containers, continue to water them well, occasionally feeding them with a weak fertilizer solution. However, if you're going to move them to your regular gardening area, you'll need to harden them off. About ten days before transplanting, expose the vines to some cooler night air (but bring them in if there's even a hint of frost!). You can then plant them in the ground immediately after your area's last frost date.

For FREE additional information on growing tomatoes and on THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS magazine, send your name and address and ask for Reprint No. 2220: "Ripening Rubbery Tomatoes." Write to Doing MORE With LESS, P.O. Box 70, Hendersonville, NC 28939, or in care of this paper.

Municipal women organize

Women from throughout Mississippi met in Jackson and organized as Mississippi Women in Municipal Government.

Lula Cooley of Laurel, a council member, was elected temporary chairman.

Sydney Anderson of Hattiesburg was named temporary secretary and a board of 15 members was elected from the three highway districts.

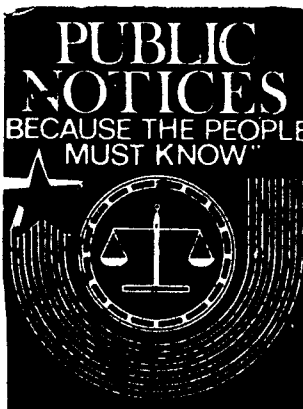

Elected from the Southern District are Viola Malone of Laurel, Diane Harenski of Biloxi, Lisa Le Bon Coward of Bay St. Louis, Clarice Wansley of Hattiesburg and Kathryn Cummings of Hattiesburg.

Mary Carpenter of Biloxi was named alternate for the southern district.

The group will encourage the full participation and active involvement of women officials in organizational and policy-making processes and programs.

Fanny Cothran was named publicity chairman.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, until 10:00 a.m. on February 27, 1986, for feeding prisoners in the Hancock County Jail.

Bids will be in the form of a per meal basis.

Meals will be based on Menu provided by the Hancock General Hospital for nutritional value.

Approximately 40% of food will be provided by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

County schools working to cut utility costs

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County School District plans to save money on its utility bills with help from a federally funded program and some computers.

According to Assistant Superintendent James Pair, the project has been funded with U.S. Department of Transportation matching funds administered by the Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation and the office of Governor William Allain.

The money can not be used to pay utility bills, Pair said. Instead, it has been channelled into the installation of devices designed to save energy on future utility bills.

The funding is being provided in three segments, the first two of which totalled $31,119. The school district's share was $15,560.

Pair said the district is hoping to get about $35,000 in federal funding for the third segment.

He added that the district expects to be able to borrow the matching funds through an interest-free state loan.

Energy saving measures are being installed by Energy Systems of Mississippi, a Meridian firm headed by engineer Gary S. Calvert.

Initial efforts to save energy have included installation of new lights in Hancock North Central School and the gymnasium at Gulfview Elementary School.

According to Pair, the new lights at Hancock North Central are brighter than the old ones, lighting more space with fewer light fixtures and less energy.

"The lights we have installed can provide four times as much light per kilowatt as the previous lighting," Calvert explained.

In addition, computerized timers have been installed to control lights, air conditioners and other devices to cut down on wasted energy.

The computer is programmed once each year according to the school schedule, Calvert said.

Calvert, who once worked at Mississippi State University on the development of some of the equipment being used, said he has installed similar systems in several other school districts and has found them to be almost 100 percent trouble free.

The computers are being installed in the principals' offices at the two schools, he said.

Each computer is about as deep as a shoebox but twice as wide.

A similar system Calvert installed in the Vicksburg school district paid for itself in about 10 weeks. Calvert said it saved $35,000 on utility bills during that period.

The size of the Hancock school district presents a few problems with saving energy, Calvert said.

For example, recommendations for numerous smaller measures such as installation of weather stripping on windows had to be rejected as not cost effective.

Calvert said the district is small compared to many of the other districts he has provided with energy-saving equipment and is limited in the amount of maintenance its staff can provide.

Pair said the district should be able to determine within a few months after the installation of the computer systems how much can be saved.

Calvert added that he believes there is a potential savings of about $10 million per year in Mississippi's public school system alone.

Pair said additional plans for the Hancock district include development of an energy-saving system for the school kitchens, which are among the most expensive utility users because they consume large amounts of heated water.

In addition, Calvert's firm is assisting the district with propane systems for transportation as well as heating.

Hancock school PTO plans open house

Hancock North Central Elementary Parent Teacher Organization's third meeting of the school year on Jan. 16 was conducted by Tony Caston, president.

The group's Grievance Committee, formed in December, reported taking a list of grievances to HNC Elementary Principal Richard Kinser.

Committee members attended the January School Board meeting.

An updated report was given by Caston on 'Classroom Improvement,' a project funded by the PTO to help improve classrooms by adding bookshelves and other items at the teacher's request.

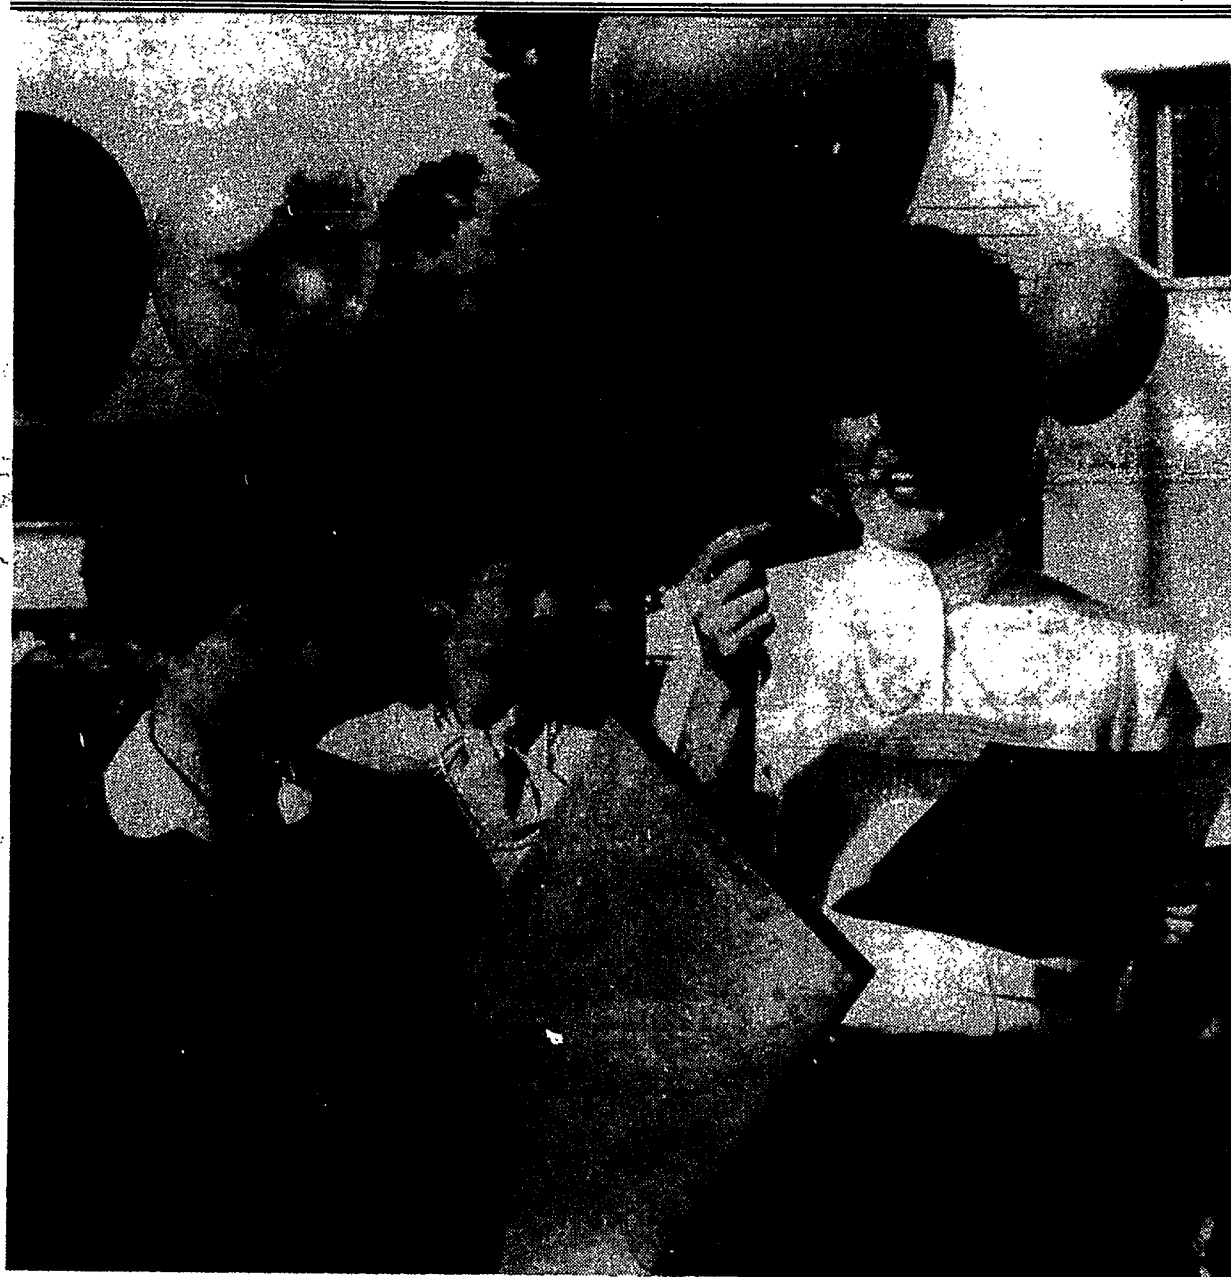

Following the business session the meeting was turned over to guest speaker Terrell Randolph, superintendent of schools, for an open forum.

Discussion centered on the state of the county school system, as well as budget and future building plans to support an expected continued influx of new students in Hancock County.

Randolph also outlines and explained the state's 'New Education Policies.'

On Tuesday, Feb. 18 at 7 p.m. the PTO will sponsor open house at the elementary school.

Public is invited and all parents are encouraged to attend

National school board group nominates Mississippi man

Harold Fisher, president of the Mississippi School Boards Association, has been nominated by the National School Boards Association to serve on its 14-member board of directors.

The NSBA is a federation of the 50 state school boards associations.

The election of the director will take place during the April 4-6, 1986 NSBA national convention. If elected, Fisher will be the first Mississippian to serve on the NSBA board.

Fisher is on the Tiptah County Board of Education, having served since 1977 and been reelected one other term to that board.

He has also been on the MSBA Board of Directors and has served as secretary-treasurer and vice president before being selected as its ninth president.

The Mississippi School Boards Association is an association of public school boards of education and trustees. The organization was founded in 1971 and now represents 151 of the states' 165 school boards.

We're helping to find our country's missing children!

National-Canal Villere Supermarkets are proud to be able to help in the search for our missing children. Now, when you buy National brand half gallon whole homogenized milk, you'll find pictures of missing children on the cartons. If you can identify the children pictured or any other missing child, report information you might have to: The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children: 1-800-843-5678. We know finding these children is important to you and you're important to us.

Ultra
Absorbent
Ultra
Dry

REVOLUTIONARY LOCK-AWAY CORE — Locks irritating wetness inside the diaper like no regular diaper can. Ultra Pampers' core contains a non-toxic ingredient in the padding that actually turns wetness into a gel. This gel traps moisture to keep it from leaking back onto your baby's skin. Ultra Pampers' new Lock-Away Core keeps your baby's skin drier than any thick, regular diaper can.

BLUE RIBBON WAISTSHIELD — Helps stop leaking at the waist even during tough night-time situations to help keep baby and baby's clothing dry.

TRIM-FITTING SHAPE — Snuggles up to your baby for a great fit because the revolutionary Lock-Away Core eliminates the need for much of the regular, thick diaper bulk.

DOUBLE ELASTIC GATHERS — Help stop leaking at the legs with a snug but gentle fit.

ONE-PIECE REFASTENABLE TAPES — To check your baby for wetness or readjust the fit of the diaper. Remember, avoid getting oils, lotions, powders or fingerprints on the tapes or on the diaper where the tapes will be placed.
